

The Public Investigator

My propane gas bill has increased almost six cents a gallon every time I fill tanks, and I can't find out why the prices are continually going up. It seems like I'm almost at the mercy of my dealer. What can I do?

Really, nothing, unless you want to change dealers. And that might not be a profitable idea when you consider installation charges and deposits involved with the change and the possibility of federal legislation in the near future that would balance out basic prices of the two types of propane available in the United States.

Propane prices, depending on where the fuel comes from, fluctuates between six and seven cents a gallon. The more expensive propane comes from the refining of crude oil, while the cheaper propane is a product of natural gas, which is less costly to convert because it involves fewer process changes.

Litter's Inc. of Circleville is one of the few propane dealers in Central Ohio who gets fuel from the natural gas process. It is converted from deposits in West Virginia.

Major brand-name propane processed from crude oil with distributors in the area are "Pyrofax" and "Doxol."

"Pyrofax" is manufactured by a large company in Texas. And, while they have recently raised their prices, the company has assigned personnel from the Federal Energy Administration to insure the increases are in line with federal guidelines at the refinery. Much the same procedure is followed by the Williams Energy Co., manufacturers of "Doxol."

While the price of propane refined from natural gas undergoes no great fluctuations in price, those dependent upon crude oil are at the mercy of general market.

President Ford, Feb. 1, added a $1 surtax per barrel on imported crude, causing all crude oil prices to increase accordingly.

New crude prices, as defined by the federal government, floats on the free market for varied selling prices. They are under no government price controls because "new crude" is the product of new exploration.

Old crude, however, oil that is being mined from existing wells, does fall under pricing controls. The price varies with grade of the crude, specific gravity, and density. The posted federal price, established on a specific day in 1973, sets the per-barrel price between $3.50 and $4. There are about 44 gallons of crude in each barrel.

And the actual cost to consumers of propane is governed somewhat by the Federal Energy Office.

Legal selling prices are based on a fairly simple formula. Suppliers discover their profit margin by computing their selling price of propane to consumers on May 15, 1973, and subtracting their actual cost to purchase the propane from the refinery.

That profit margin is maintained, under federal price controls, by adding it to the cost of propane at the refinery today. Some special allowances may be added and some dealers may also add a penny-a-gallon additional markup.

Further questions on propane refining or price controls should be directed to the regional Federal Energy Administration office in Chicago, Ill.

Complaints about specific dealers or possible over-charging should be directed to James Barkley of the enforcement branch of the Federal Energy Administration office, 85 Marconi Blvd., Columbus. His phone number is 469-6890.

North Viets Take 2 Provincial Capitals

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Tank-led North Vietnamese forces overran two more provincial capitals in widespread attacks along South Vietnam's northern coast today and isolated the old imperial capital of Hue by overland route, Western military analysts said.

The fall of Quang Ngai and Tam Ky cities south of Da Nang, combined with the cutoff of Hue, leaves Da Nang as the only major stronghold along the northern coast. But Da Nang too is isolated and will have to be resupplied by air and boat.

The continuing military offensive has created almost one million South Vietnamese refugees.

In Cambodia, the American airlift of rice, ammunition and fuel resumed after a two-day suspension due to shelling of the Phnom Penh airport. Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, Saigon's chief military spokesman, said North Vietnamese forces backed by tanks and artillery assaulted Tam Ky, the capital of Quang Tin province 35 miles south of Da Nang. He said the fighting was continuing but he had no further information.

Quang Tin, if it falls would be the 10th province given up by President Nguyen Van Thieu's government to the Communists. There are 44 provinces in South Vietnam.

The lost provinces constitute more than a fifth of South Vietnam's territory and had a population of about 2 million people.

But nearly half are reported to have fled to Saigon, Da Nang, Qui Nhon and other cities still under control by the government.

North and South Vietnamese infantry and tanks battled Sunday 10 miles southeast of Tay Ninh City, the threatened provincial capital 55 miles northwest of Saigon. The South Vietnamese military command claimed 182 North Vietnamese were killed and two of their tanks destroyed. Government losses were not reported.

But the command also reported the loss of two outposts and a hamlet near Tay Ninh, which is believed to be the next Communist target.

Thousands of refugees fleeing from Hue, the former imperial capital on the northern coast, were reported caught in heavy fighting along Highway 1, the country's main north-south road.

The North Vietnamese were holding the Da Bac Pass, blocking the route to Da Nang, and the government rushed up some 800 paratroopers to clear the road. But Associated Press Correspondent Peter Arnett reported from Da Nang that the paratroopers were overrun.

Arnett said Hue, nearly deserted, continued under shellfire and overcast skies prevented helicopters flying in to help evacuate those who were left.

Many were fleeing Hue by boat. One motor ferry bringing refugees down the coast capsized in stormy seas Sunday night.

Mideast Talks Collapse

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford called congressional leaders together to hear a pessimistic Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger outline a Middle East situation he believes may be beyond solution.

Kissinger returned late Sunday night from a fruitless 16-day Middle East peace-seeking mission. His effort came apart when he failed to bring Israel and Egypt together on the question of an Israeli surrender of occupied Arab land in exchange for a public pledge by Cairo to renounce war against the Jewish state.

After the secretary's arrival, U.S. officials said the alternatives now left, primarily a resumption of a Geneva peace conference, hold little hope for a settlement.

With American influence now seriously damaged among the Arab states, they are expected to unify in making far-reaching demands on Israel that the Jerusalem government could not grant and still stay alive politically.

In the view of a very tired secretary of state, there can be little chance of a peace agreement, according to the officials. However, Kissinger was described as stopping short of predicting a new war.

He reportedly told all of this to Ford in an hour-and-40-minute meeting after the secretary's day-long return flight from Israel.

Before going into the White House the two men talked briefly with newsmen. They were far from confident and made it clear the step-by-step approach developed by Kissinger had hopelessly disintegrated.

Ford told Kissinger he had "made a maximum effort. Unfortunately, for reasons beyond our control it did not turn out the way we wanted."

The President then added that while "we have on a temporary basis, hopefully, not achieved all that we desire I continue to be an optimist."

Kissinger made no public expression of hope and his remarks made no reference to the setback as temporary. What he did say was that "the necessities that produced the mission continue and the need for a lasting peace in the Middle East remains."

Both men made indirect references to the next stage in the Middle East drama—a multinational effort such as a Geneva peace conference.

Kissinger has resisted a resumption of the conference, feeling it would deteriorate into a shapeless mass of bitterness in which nothing would be accomplished.

He reportedly still feels that way. On the return from Jerusalem, American officials outlined a scenario of gloom, both for Israel and American foreign policy in general.

The Soviet Union will reemerge as a major influence in the region and will begin shipping new arms to Egypt.

The trend toward warmer U.S.-Egyptian relations will reverse, symbolized by Sadat declining to visit the United States.

Egypt and Syria probably will resist any extension of the deadline allowing United Nations peacekeeping forces to separate their territory from land held by Israel.

Congressional support for Israel may slip a bit, although not enough to hamper the administration's plans to give the Jewish state massive military and economic aid.

Neither publicly nor privately has Kissinger blamed either Egypt or Israel for the collapse of his mission.

Israel and Egypt were not so reticent. Israeli Prime Minister Yit-

SUPERVISE PLANTING—Supervising the planting of evergreen trees as a windbreak at Circleville High School are, from the left, Nancy River, Bev Agin, Marcia Helwage, and Bill Brooke. The ladies form the conservation committee of the Circleville Junior Women's Club which implemented the outdoor laboratory with the aid of Brooke, the school's biology teacher.

"Plant A tree And Watch It Grow" is the theme for the outdoor laboratory started recently at Circleville High School.

Members of the Circleville Junior Women's Club Conservation Committee and Bill Brooke, biology instructor at Circleville High School, have been working on the project.

Junior Women on the conservation committee are Bev Agin, Marcia Helwage, Nancy River, and Anna Lee Yurko.

The outdoor lab was created to encourage students in environmental study. Through its use, they will be able to identify various types of trees and plants as well as observe their growth.

Circleville students planted a wind-break last week with some 200 evergreen trees obtained through the Department of Natural Resources. The windbreak includes three rows of trees planted outside the fence on the north side of the Circleville football field.

Other trees that will be planted next month have been donated to the project by Goode's Nursery and Cole's Nursery.

When the project is completed, there will be seven areas of study. They include prairie, agriculture, windbreak, trees, hydrophilic, study, and brush.

The Junior Women's Club has also been aided by other organizations and service clubs in the area as well as local merchants in implementing the project.

Churches Observe Holy Week Services

Area Churches will hold Passion Week services in observance of the last week of Christ's personal earthly ministry.

A Community Good Friday service will be held 1 p.m. at the Good Shepherd United Methodist Church, with the Dr. Amos Henry as the guest speaker.

Calvary United Methodist Church will begin Holy Week services 7:30 p.m. tonight through Thursday, with the sermon topics "The Men About Jesus".

Holy Communion will be observed at the Thursday Service.

Jack and Doris Born will provide special music during Holy Week services at the Williamsport Charge of the United Methodist Church.

The services will be held Monday and Tuesday at the Mt. Pleasant Church with Wednesday, Thursday and Friday services held at the Williamsport Methodist Church.

The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated 7 p.m. Thursday at St. Philip's Episcopal Church. A special Liturgy of the Day and Devotions will be conducted 7 p.m. Friday.

The Religious Drama Company of Taylor University, Upland, Indiana, will present a four-part mime on the theme, "For the Sake of Clarity" during the 7:30 p.m. Maundy Thursday service at the Community United Methodist Church.

The Sacrament of Holy Communion will also be celebrated.

A Candlelight Holy Communion Service is planned for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Good Shepherd United Methodist Church.

The Communicant Class will receive their first communion during the Maundy Thursday Communion Service at the First Presbyterian Church.

"From Words of Death To Words of Life" is the sermon theme for the Maundy Thursday Communion service, 7:30 p.m. at the Trinity Lutheran Church.

A special Good Friday service is planned 12:30 p.m. with the sermon topic "Victory". Communion will be celebrated 7:30 p.m. Friday continuing with the theme "From Words of Death to Words of Life".

A devotional message will precede the observance of Holy Communion, 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the First Church of Christ in Christian Union.

The Dresbach United Methodist Church will observe Communion at the 7:30 p.m. service Friday.

Communion Service will be held 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Zion United Methodist Church in Ashville.

The Ashville Churches will participate in a union service Good Friday service 1 p.m. at the Zion United Methodist Church.

Scioto Chapel at Robtown will observe Holy communion 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The churches will hold special Sunrise and Easter Services which will be printed in Friday's edition of The Herald.

Bloodmobile Visit Set Thursday

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Circleville Thursday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Community United Methodist Church.

Several local residents have received large amounts of blood and will appreciate replacements made in their behalf.

Benjamin Eller, 929 S. Washington St., is a patient in Doctors Hospital and will need at least eight units for surgery this week.

Richard Raub, 636 Elm Ave., is recovering following surgery at University Hospital. He received 20 units of blood.

Family members and friends who can make replacements will help to keep the supply available for others when they need it.

To make an appointment please call the Red Cross, 474-5736.

Asa S. Bushnell Dies

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Asa S. Bushnell, 75, former director of the United States Olympic Committee and retired commissioner of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference which he headed for 32 years, died Saturday of a heart ailment. He was Princeton's unofficial athletic director from 1927 to 1944 and was appointed to the Olympic Committee in 1965.

Registration Deadline Is May 5

The Pickaway County Board of Elections sent 2928 notices of cancellation of registration to residents in Circleville and Pickaway County who have failed to vote in the past two years.

Of that figure, only 935 persons returned the notification cards.

The remaining 1993 residents who failed to return the registration cards must re-register at the Board of Elections office in order to vote in the June Primary.

Nancy Ayers, Director, noted that returning the cards is a much simpler process compared to the dozen items one must fill out to re-register.

In a break-down of the total, 1220 Circleville residents were pulled for not voting in a two-year period. Of the 403 reinstated, 317 were reinstated by returning the cards and 86 by a change of address. The elections office cancelled 817.

In Pickaway County, 1708 residents were pulled for failure to vote. Of the 532 reinstated, 435 returned the yellow card and 97 by a change of address.

The remaining 1176 were cancelled.

In November, 1974 voter registration was 10,965 in the County and 5,188 in the City for a total of 16,153.

With the cancellations, present voter registration totals 14,160.

Voter registration closes May 5 for the June 3 Primary election.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell sharply today, giving way to an early surge of selling touched off by news of the breakdown of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's Middle East mission.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 20 points in the first half hour, was off 16.35 at 746.71 at noon. Losers swamped gainers by more than a 10-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers noted a strong psychological impact on the market from the collapse of Kissinger's step-by-step efforts toward a settlement between Israel and Egypt. They also pointed out that the market had shown signs of increasing weakness in a gradual but steady decline last week.

Point-plus losers on the Big Board's most-active list included National Semiconductor, down 2 1/4 at 27 3/4; Sterling Drug, off 1 1/2 at 21 1/2; S.S. Kresge, 1 1/2 lower at 24 3/4, and Exxon, down 1 3/4 at 71 1/2.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was down 1.15 at 79.32. The NYSE's composite commonstock index dropped .33 to 43.33.

Syntax, the Amex volume leader, was down 1 1/2 at 36 1/2.

Amy Curtiss Earns Betty Crocker's Second State Honor

Miss Amy Elizabeth Curtiss has earned the second highest rating in Ohio in the 1975 Betty Crocker Search of Leadership in Family Living. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Curtiss, 505 Lawnwood Court.

AMY CURTISS

She was notified recently of her award of an honor certificate and a $500 scholarship. A letter of congratulations from Betty Crocker was also sent to the recipient of this award.

Miss Curtiss has been the recipient of several outstanding honors throughout her high school days not the least of which was the recent naming by the Circleville Jaycees as the "Outstanding Young Citizen."

She is a senior at Circleville High School where she holds a 3.98 grade average and ranks fifth in her class of approximately 240. At CHS, Miss Curtiss is a member of the National Honor Society, English Merit Society, Latin Merit Society, Science Club, Latin Club and Service Over Self Club. She has been an honor roll student every year and has won state honors in science. For the past two years, she has been a member of the school's varsity "In The Know" team and was an alternate during her sophomore year.

In the community, Miss Curtiss is a six-year member of 4-H and a ten-year member of the Girl Scouts. Two summers ago, she toured Russia with a group of Girl Scouts. She is presently a First Class Girl Scout which is equivalent to the Boy Scouts' Eagle Scout.

Miss Curtiss is an active member of the Community United Methodist Church.

The Betty Crocker Search, sponsored by General Mills, Inc., is planned to help achieve the following goals: to enhance the dignity and prestige of the American home; to help students prepare for family living; and to emphasize the contributions to the home being made by high schools and their teachers and to help their important work.

Science Research Associates, Chicago, a nationally-known educational testing and publishing firm, constructed the test and scored the results. The student with the highest score in each participating school was first named the Family Leader of Tomorrow and received a distinctive award. The examination paper of that Family Leader was then entered in competition for state and national honors.

Miss Curtiss was notified on Jan. 24 that she was the local winner and from there, she took second place in the state.

Israel On Alert As Tension Rises Across Middle East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Israeli troops patrolled their country's borders in a state of alert today amid rising tension generated by the failure of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's peace mission.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy predicted that the tension would get worse. However, Israel, Egypt and the United States all indicated that they were prepared to attend Middle East peace talks in Geneva to seek a settlement.

President Ford welcomed Kissinger back to Washington from his 16-day mission and praised him for making "maximum efforts" to achieve an agreement between Israel and Egypt. He said the U.S. quest for peace in the Middle East was ended only "on a temporary basis."

U.S. officials told newsmen accompanying the secretary of state Kissinger home is convinced his personal diplomacy is dead after running into "irreconcilable" differences between Israel's and Egypt's terms for a new withdrawal of Israeli forces in the Sinai desert.

The officials said the Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva is likely to get under way in May. At the conference Israel would have to face all her Arab adversaries, including probably the Palestine Liberation Organization, instead of negotiating with them one by one, the strategy that Kissinger devised.

The United States and the Soviet Union are cochairmen of the conference, which has met only once, briefly, and did nothing then. Its resumption has long been demanded by the Russians, the Syrians and the Palestinians, but until last weekend Egyptian President Anwar Sadat stuck with Kissinger's step-by-step diplomacy.

Fahmy told newsmen his government would make a formal request "within days" for the return to Geneva.

"We are willing to go to Geneva," said Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin.

Fahmy said the collapse of Kissinger's shuttle negotiations left a "very dim" situation, and he did not exclude the possibility of new fighting. Egypt and Israel blamed each other for the deadlock.

"Dr. Kissinger felt it sterile to continue because of Israel's behavior," said Fahmy.

Rabin in a news conference confirmed that Israel had refused to modify its demand for a non-belligerency pledge from Egypt in exchange for the Mitla and Gidi passes and the Abu Rudeis oilfield.

"We were entitled to a statement ending the war," he said.

Israel offered "to evacuate the area from the present line to the middle of the passes or even a little bit more than that, to evacuate the oilfield and to hand it back to Egypt, but we expected not only general statements about readiness to limit the use of force," Rabin said.

"The state of belligerency will only be ended after Israel's final withdrawal from all Arab territories and the creation of a Palestinian state," said Fahmy.

Both Rabin's office and sources in Washington denied Israeli newspaper reports that President Ford sent Rabin a cable blaming Israel for the breakdown in the talks.

A note was also sent to Sadat, the sources said. They had no idea of its contents but assumed it resembled the note to Rabin.

The Israeli military command said its troops killed two Arab guerrillas Sunday on the Lebanese border. Three Arab gunmen were killed in a clash Friday, the area's most serious since January.

DEAR FRIENDS,

On this glorious Easter — these eternal words of
St. Francis:
Lord, make us instruments of Thy peace;
Where there is hatred, let me
sow love;
Where there is injury, pardon;
Where there is doubt, faith;
Where there is despair, hope;
Where there is sadness, joy;
Grant that we may not seek so much to be consoled, as to console; To be understood, as to understand.
To be loved, as to love.

Sincerely,

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell sharply today, giving way to an early surge of selling touched off by news of the breakdown of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's Middle East mission.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 20 points in the first half hour, was off 16.35 at 746.71 at noon. Losers swamped gainers by more than a 10-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers noted a strong psychological impact on the market from the collapse of Kissinger's step-by-step efforts toward a settlement between Israel and Egypt. They also pointed out that the market had shown signs of increasing weakness in a gradual but steady decline last week.

Point-plus losers on the Big Board's most-active list included National Semiconductor, down 2 1/4 at 27 3/4; Sterling Drug, off 1 1/2 at 21 1/2; S.S. Kresge, 1 1/2 lower at 24 1/2, and Exxon, down 1 1/2 at 71 1/2.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was down 1.15 at 79.32. The NYSE's composite commonstock index dropped .93 to 43.33.

Syntax, the Amex volume leader, was down 1 1/2 at 36 1/2.

Indiana Bridges In Poor Shape

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Some 9,585 county bridges in Indiana are in unsatisfactory condition, says a Purdue University report.

A special study by Purdue's Highway Extension and Research Project for Indiana counties said more than 6,500 of the structures are unsafe for the average school bus to cross, and many are inadequate for even heavy automobiles.

A number of those spans have been closed to school buses already, and others have been reduced to one lane, restricted traffic.

Dinner was served by the Circleville Chapter No. 90 Order of Eastern Star.

C. Neilson Griffith, a 33rd Degree Mason of Sunbury spoke on the opportunities available to Masons to become involved in civic affairs. He indicated the leadership that Masons have provided throughout the history of America.

Edgar L. Ott, Columbus Secretary of the Valley of Columbus and a Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Ohio, announced that the Spring Reunion and degree conferral would be on April 16, 17 and 18 at the Columbus Masonic Temple.

Several candidates from Pickaway County for the Spring Reunion were introduced.

Other 33rd Degree Masons present in addition to Ott and Griffith were Howard Layman, Chillicothe; Francis Noecker, Lancaster; Albert C. Binder, Ralph G. Jenkins, Robert W. Starrett, J. Frederick Moehl, Fay L. Gullion, Irvin R. Lynch, Wayne Graf, Russell T. Goerke, Irvin F. Young, Judge Horace W. Troop, Roy H. Long, Columbus; and Harry E. Sark, Ashville.

Judge William Ammer, Director of the Pickaway County Fraternal

Relations Committee, served as master of ceremonies for the event.

Ambassadors of the local committee are Thurman I. Miller, Director Emeritus; Blenn D. Bales, Dewey Downs, Dr. Robert E. Hedges, Circleville; Harry Sark and Harry M. Trego, Ashville; John W. Craig, New Holland and Aulten E. Carter, Williamsport.

Portuguese Cabinet Reshuffled

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Premier Vasco Goncalves has formed a new cabinet for Portugal's left-wing military government that is expected to be announced within the next 24 hours, a government spokesman said today.

Political sources have forecast that there will be increased Communist influence among the civilians in the cabinet, though military men will continue to dominate it.

Information Minister Jorge Jesuino who reported a "general agreement" on the cabinet among political factions, the premier and the ruling Supreme Revolutionary Council, did not specify what the composition would be.

Goncalves called in present cabinet ministers unexpectedly today, apparently to prepare for the reshuffle. A more leftward shift in the cabinet had been expected since the government put down an attempted uprising two weeks ago that it blamed on "reactionary" forces led by former President Antonio de Spinola.

Another spokesman from the Information Ministry said the announcement Sunday by high military authorities of the discovery of a right-wing guerrilla organization operating from Spain against the Portuguese government did not mean a worsening of relations between the two countries.

Bugging Device Disconnected

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Erie County officials have confirmed the existence of an electronic eavesdropping system in the county jail's visitors area, but they say the device was disconnected before a state law restricting the practice went into effect.

DEAR FRIENDS,

On this glorious Easter — these eternal words of St. Francis:
Lord, make us instruments of Thy peace;
Where there is hatred, let me sow love;
Where there is injury, pardon;
Where there is doubt, faith;
Where there is despair, hope;
Where there is sadness, joy;
Grant that we may not seek so much to be consoled, as to console;
To be understood, as to understand.
To be loved, as to love.

Sincerely,

Ours, Yours And Theirs

A Page Of Opinion

Power Corrupts

With all the commentary which has been made about political scandals in recent years — and few subjects have received more attention — very little of it has permeated to the hub of the situation. That is nothing more than a recitation of the truism that power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely.

Few would deny that power in Washington and other governmental centers has grown immeasurably in recent decades. That growth has been passed off in many instances as necessary to provide needed services to the people.

But that brings us to another truism. Concentrated power strong enough to give to the people also is strong enough to take from them. It is a two-way street. The most recent revelations concerning misuse of the CIA, FBI, IRS and possibly other governmental investigative agencies, really are not new to astute observers of government.

They do reinforce the knowledge that such practices have been condoned and used by at least the last three national administrations. And that brings us to the hub of the problem. The power concentrated in government has become an awesome one which few citizens — including presidents — may fully comprehend.

As long as that growth continues, so will abuses of power.

The Towering Dream

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — More's the pity. Aristotle Onassis died before he could see the fruition of his dream, the skyscraping Olympic Tower on Fifth Avenue. The pipes of New York's St. Patrick's Day parade were skirling on the streets far below his lofty glass monument while the widow Onassis was for the second time in a relatively young life supervising the burial plans of a fabled husband.

Ari, who had planned to move into the most expensive duplex or triplex in the land or the world, at the uppermost reaches of Olympic Tower, never got to see the final shape of this latest of his several homes in the world.

A man he may have known named Erwin S. Wolfson had slightly better luck with a dream. Unlike Ari, he saw it nearly fulfilled. Wolfson was a real estate man who pioneered the redevelopment of Lower Manhattan, which had slowly but surely fallen into a mire from the glory days of the erection of the then tallest building in the world, the Woolworth. His later ambition was to create a great office building athwart Park Avenue at 45th, and he did. It is the Pan Am building.

As the building grew in stature, Wolfson learned that he had terminal cancer. As it was "topped off" at 59 floors, and he was near death, he asked Bob Cummings, who was to manage the heliport on its peak, if he could arrange for him to see a close-up of the fulfillment of his dream. Cummings took a helicopter to the lawn of Wolfson's home in Purchase, N.Y., strapped the dying millionaire to a stretcher, and flew him to the still unoccupied Pan Am building. The chopper circled the roof-top pad for a time, and flew the dying but satisfied man back to his home. He died shortly thereafter.

Ari, for all of his luck, didn't make it.

There's been a heavy decimation rate along the lecture trail, Watergate wisely enough. Judge John Sirica knocked off a couple of the advance guard speakers. Then Ron Ziegler removed himself from the field of tattlers and apologists in a student-faculty quarrel over the $3,000 fee he was to be paid. Now John Dean, first to grease the sliding board for President Nixon, has taken himself out of what promised to be one of the best-paying new trades in the land.

Fees, or, rather, the publicity about them, were the deciding issue in Dean's case. During his question and answer periods after he finished his entreaties for a more honest approach to Presidential politicking, hairy undergrads popped up all over the hall asking him, in effect, "How much you getting paid for this rap?"

It offended Dean. He was never able to get over the point that if the papers said he was getting $4,000, it was only half that much. The lecture bureau to which he belonged took as much as 50 per cent. By and large, lecture bureaus are about as compassionate as Simon Legree. If a banker charged as much interest on a small loan as the head of the lecture bureau charges, they'd soon share a cell at Leavenworth.

Dean has given up about $50,000 worth of talks. ($25,000, really.) He wouldn't have been able to save much of the $25,000, after taxes, inasmuch as his much larger advance money for his book had arrived. He said the other day that with one thing and another, he hadn't been able to make a dent in the money he owes. The money he owes may include the $5,000 he took from the till of the Nixon Re-election Committee funds to finance a honeymoon that never got near Niagara Falls.

Dean has been roundly cursed by those who still believe President Nixon was no more guilty than any of his remembered fellow Presidents. Dean has been called all kinds of dirty double crossers, a liar, sneak, snake in the grass, whatnot.

But, any way you look at it, he only did what he was told by Nixon in the Oval Office on April 16, 1973. The White House tapes have him saying to Dean, who was scheduled to testify before Sen. Sam Ervin's committee:

"... Tell the truth. That is the thing I've told everybody around here — tell the truth! All they do, John, is compound it. That Hiss would be free today if he hadn't lied. If he had said, 'Yes, I knew Chambers and as a young man I was involved with some Communist activities but I broke it off a number of years ago.' And Chambers would have dropped it. If you are going to lie, you go to jail for the lie rather than the crime. So, believe me, don't ever lie."

"... Understand when I say don't lie. Don't lie about me either."

Dean — "No, I won't sir..."

Mortgage Subsidy Plan Could Face Presidential Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Middle-income Americans would be able to obtain federally subsidized mortgages under a House-passed bill aimed at stimulating the depressed housing industry.

The House passed the so-called Emergency Middle Income Housing Act Friday and sent it to the Senate by a 259-106 vote, despite warnings of a veto by President Ford. The vote margin was slightly above the two-thirds majority which would be needed to override a veto.

House Banking Chairman Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., had pushed the legislation as part of the Democratic leadership's economic revival program, saying that the economy will improve only when the homebuilding industry is helped out of its depression.

Democrats estimated that the $1.3 billion in subsidies on a $12 billion portfolio of houses would spur construction of about 400,000 new houses, putting hard-hit construction workers back to work.

Before the final vote, the House rejected, 242 to 126, a Republican substitute to extend existing federal programs that funnel more money into private mortgage lending markets.

Republicans said the housing industry appears to be recuperating on its own but the promise of cheap mortgage money sometime in the future would thwart its recovery.

But the Democrats said their subsidy plan was a better way to revive the homebuilding industry and help middle-class families buy homes.

The bill would lower mortgage interest rates temporarily to 6 per cent, with the subsidy ending after six years, or to 7 per cent for the life of the loan.

Of the $1.3 billion, 70 per cent would go for subsidies on purchases of newly constructed homes, with the remaining funds permitted for sales of the backlog of new but unsold homes and the existing stock of used homes.

Eligible buyers could earn no more than 120 per cent of their area's median income — with the average such income ranging between $15,000 and $18,000 — and could choose a home valued at no more than $38,000.

Ten per cent of the $1.3 billion in subsidy funds would be allocated to buyers in high-cost cities for purchases of homes valued up to $42,000.

However, in such cities as Atlanta, Dallas, Chicago, Detroit, New York, Seattle, Los Angeles, Houston and San Francisco, the median price for a new home exceeded $42,000 last winter.

Right now, for a person buying a $20,000 house with a 30-year mortgage at the current average competitive interest rate of 8.5 per cent, the monthly payments would be $153.70.

The bill would subsidize the interest payment, dropping it to 6 per cent interest and making the buyer's monthly payments $120. The subsidy would decline after the third year and end entirely after the sixth. The buyer then would have to pay current market interest for the balance of the loan.

Wrong Way Child Rearing

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — "Ten Commandments" for those who want to bring up their children the wrong way have been compiled by the vicar of Bramcote parish near here, the Rev. James Hamilton-Brown.

The list of what not to do: 1, Never make them do anything they don't want to. 2, Expect them to have standards for life, without giving them a basis. 3, Leave them to make up their own minds about God and Jesus. 4, Expect them to do as you say, rather than to do as you do. 5, Assume that they are little angels. 6, Assume they are immune from bad influences. 7,

Assume someone else will teach them the facts of life. 8, Keep them sheltered from the nasty things in the world. 9, Never have time to be their friend, and go out to work all day to give them everything they need instead. 10, Never inquire where they have been, or what they have been doing.

Plans were announced for the move of Mader's Funeral Home to East Mound Street. Lincoln S. Mader had purchased the residence known as the Wilder home at 125 E. Mound St. The residence was a 15-room brick structure.

Ed Grigg, chairman of the steering committee in charge of the proposed Community Chest in Pickaway County, announced plans to acquaint the public with the advantages of combining several fund raising activities.

Ed Helwagon was honored in the Herald for his 45 years as a Circleville businessman. He started out repairing one-cylinder cars.

Claims from county residents that there is a definite need for more stop signs on county and township roads brought conflicting versions from the county commissioners and the county engineer. The commissioners said it was up to the engineer to recommend the signs and he in turn said it was up to them to act.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have hypertension. I know it is high blood pressure. Can it be caused by the fact that I am a high-strung, very tense person?

Mrs. E. P. B., Wash.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Many people assume that hypertension simply means increased nervous tension. It does not. Hypertension means "high blood pressure." There are a number of types of high blood pressure, and a number of different causes for it.

It is true that there is a relationship between emotional tensions and high blood pressure. It is well established that the emotions play a role in every physical illness.

Certainly, people with uncontrollable tempers and aggressions will temporarily raise their blood pressure during these bouts. If hypertension or high blood pressure does not already exist, then the blood pressure will return to normal.

Similarly, while running a race or during periods of increased emotional stress, there will be fluctuations in pressure.

People with high blood pressure have a sustained increase in their pressure.

In most instances, high blood pressure today is a controllable condition. Unfortunately, thousands of people have this disorder without any symptoms of it. Thus they go on their way unsuspecting and untreated.

New drugs available today are excellent. It is extremely important that all people have their blood pressure checked so that they, the "hidden hypertensives," may be treated and controlled long before complications arise.

I have lost my sense of smell in the past seven years. Will it ever return to normal?

Mr. T. T. H., Mich.

Dear Mr. H.:

There are so many reasons for the loss of smell that it is difficult to speculate if it will return.

Long-standing allergies, chronic sinus infection, nasal polyps and overuse of nose drops can produce "anosmia," or "loss of smell."

Doctors have used small doses of cortisone in selected cases, and have been successful in restoring the sense of smell.

An ear, nose and throat specialist can, with X-rays and other techniques, find the reason for your problem.

An Addiction

By JIM BISHOP

Golf will be with us in 30 days. Soon, the old man will be polishing his clubs, finding the last year's sweat sox and making fantastic practice swings with a two-iron in the living room. On soggy weekends, daddy will arise at dawn to flip, flog, flair and miss a white dimpled ball which, before the day is done, will get the deep six in a lake.

Scores of millions of Americans play, even though the game, as designed by embittered Scots, is impossible. It is the only sport—sport?—in which the player is not permitted to see what he is doing; it is won by low score, not high as in normal competition, and has more penalties than Tobacknoksksky's "Compendium of Criminal Law."

Golf is an addiction, as everyone knows, but it is also an affliction. Head down, tee the ball off the left heel, grip the club as though you are shaking hands with yourself, bend right knee (called a forward press) move clubhead away from ball in an arc, keep right shoulder low, flex wrists at top of swing, keep eye on ball, bring clubhead down in a swift arc, hit the top of the ball and watch it bound like a bunny to the ladies' tee.

That's all there is to it. Unless you want to count the second miss with a three-wood, well tagged but headed for tall timber; the third, executed with a wedge to get back on the fairway; a fourth to any trap around the green; a fifth and sixth with a sand wedge, the second of which always clears the green to die as a poached egg in another bunker; a roll out with a vicious putter; two putts toward a hole; and a seven-foot gimme for an even 10 on a par three hole.

The virtue in golf is that nothing good happens. Think shank and you'll shank the shot. Think lake and your ball is damp. The game consists of four hours of unremitting humiliation. All suffers do most of their dying on the green. No matter how long or how short the putt, they are not going to sink it. When the ball stops, the golfer always looks to heaven and says, "Why me, God?" Some day a thunderous voice will respond from a cloud, "Because you can't putt, you dummy!"

Duffers come in all sizes and shapes. The one with the white shorts and the hairy legs has a square tissue hanging out of the back of his pants. He also wears a peaked cap. This one plays from the gold tees—far back—and couldn't hit grass if he fell. He, you may be sure, is off his game. "Yesterday, I fired a 74 at Sinking Swamp, a tough course."

There are the fat ones, who walk up to the ball and try to hit from memory. Others carry a spare ball in the pocket in case they lose one. They drop the second one and yell, "Morris. Over here. I found it."

Young players with loose spines and madding heads can belt a golf ball 260 yards down the middle, but they can't chip and they regard putting as a dessert. Retired men pat the ball time after time and, when they hole out, shake their heads sadly and mutter, "Gimme another six." It was nine.

I make up my own rules. No penalty for losing a ball in a lake because the buck and a quarter cost is enough. If behind a tree, remove ball or tree at will. The word most frequently heard by my golfing partners is "Mulligan." He is the saint of all who believe in a second chance.

If the ball is in deep grass or sand, lift it frowning as though you're not sure it belongs to you, then set it up on top of something. A tee will do. Lying and cheating are integral to golf.

Should you hole out in par or one over, your memory is razor sharp for the correct number. If it is a double bogey or more, turn on the green and look backwards, as though recounting the strokes. If you had an eight, tell the scorekeeper, "Five."

No matter how fast the foursome in front, keep yelling, "Fore!" at them. This makes them nervous. If the foursome behind you hits into your group, pause to glare backward, then hit the offending sphere into the rough. This is the ethical, gentlemanly side of the game.

When the round is over, give employees kind words instead of tips. Tell the caddy master he's the best. In the locker room, the man who has shined your shoes, knocked the mud out of your spikes and given you a bath towel for your shower should be awarded with the newest golf joke you have heard.

The kid who parked your car, and now lifts your heavy golf bag to the trunk should smile as you slam the door and yell, "Thanks. I'll take care of you next week."

On the way home, tell anybody who will listen that if only six of those putts that hung on the lip had gone in you'd have broken a hundred.

That's golf . . .

There is no law which requires attendance of any member of Congress at any session.

They'll Do It Every Time

A Page Of Opinion

Power Corrupts

With all the commentary which has been made about political scandals in recent years — and few subjects have received more attention — very little of it has permeated to the hub of the situation. That is nothing more than a recitation of the truism that power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely.

Few would deny that power in Washington and other governmental centers has grown immeasurably in recent decades. That growth has been passed off in many instances as necessary to provide needed services to the people.

But that brings us to another truism. Concentrated power strong enough to give to the people also is strong enough to take from them. It is a two-way street. The most recent revelations concerning misuse of the CIA, FBI, IRS and possibly other governmental investigative agencies, really are not new to astute observers of government.

They do reinforce the knowledge that such practices have been condoned and used by at least the last three national administrations. And that brings us to the hub of the problem. The power concentrated in government has become an awesome one which few citizens — including presidents — may fully comprehend.

As long as that growth continues, so will abuses of power.

The Towering Dream

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — More's the pity. Aristotle Onassis died before he could see the fruition of his dream, the skyscraping Olympic Tower on Fifth Avenue. The pipes of New York's St. Patrick's Day parade were skirling on the streets far below his lofty glass monument while the widow Onassis was for the second time in a relatively young life supervising the burial plans of a fabled husband.

Ari, who had planned to move into the most expensive duplex or triplex in the land or the world, at the uppermost reaches of Olympic Tower, never got to see the final shape of this latest of his several homes in the world.

A man he may have known named Erwin S. Wolfson had slightly better luck with a dream. Unlike Ari, he saw it nearly fulfilled. Wolfson was a real estate man who pioneered the redevelopment of Lower Manhattan, which had slowly but surely fallen into a mire from the glory days of the erection of the then tallest building in the world, the Woolworth. His later ambition was to create a great office building athwart Park Avenue at 45th, and he did. It is the Pan Am building.

As the building grew in stature, Wolfson learned that he had terminal cancer. As it was "topped off" at 59 floors, and he was near death, he asked Bob Cummings, who was to manage the heliport on its peak, if he could arrange for him to see a close-up of the fulfillment of his dream. Cummings took a helicopter to the lawn of Wolfson's home in Purchase, N.Y., strapped the dying millionaire to a stretcher, and flew him to the still unoccupied Pan Am building. The chopper circled the roof-top pad for a time, and flew the dying but satisfied man back to his home. He died shortly thereafter.

Ari, for all of his luck, didn't make it.

There's been a heavy decimation rate along the lecture trail, Watergate wisely enough. Judge John Sirica knocked off a couple of the advance guard speakers. Then Ron Ziegler removed himself from the field of tatters and apologists in a student-faculty quarrel over the $3,000 fee he was to be paid. Now John Dean, first to grease the sliding board for President Nixon, has taken himself out of what promised to be one of the best-paying new trades in the land.

Fees, or, rather, the publicity about them, were the deciding issue in Dean's case. During his question and answer periods after he finished his entreaties for a more honest approach to Presidential politicking, hairy undergrads popped up all over the hall asking him, in effect, "How much you getting paid for this rap?"

It offended Dean. He was never able to get over the point that if the papers said he was getting $4,000, it was only half that much. The lecture bureau to which he belonged took as much as 50 per cent. By and large, lecture bureaus are about as compassionate as Simon Legree. If a banker charged as much interest on a small loan as the head of the lecture bureau charges, they'd soon share a cell at Leavenworth.

Dean has given up about $50,000 worth of talks. ($25,000, really.) He wouldn't have been able to save much of the $25,000, after taxes, inasmuch as his much larger advance money for his book had arrived. He said the other day that with one thing and another, he hadn't been able to make a dent in the money he owes. The money he owes may include the $5,000 he took from the till of the Nixon Reelection Committee funds to finance a honeymoon that never got near Niagara Falls.

Dean has been roundly cursed by those who still believe President Nixon was no more guilty than any of his remembered fellow Presidents. Dean has been called all kinds of dirty double crossers, a liar, sneak, snake in the grass, whatnot.

But, any way you look at it, he only did what he was told by Nixon in the Oval Office on April 16, 1973. The White House tapes have him saying to Dean, who was scheduled to testify before Sen. Sam Ervin's committee:

"... Tell the truth. That is the thing I've told everybody around here — tell the truth! All they do, John, is compound it. That Hiss would be free today if he hadn't lied. If he had said, 'Yes, I knew Chambers and as a young man I was involved with some Communist activities but I broke it off a number of years ago.' And Chambers would have dropped it. If you are going to lie, you go to jail for the lie rather than the crime. So, believe me, don't ever lie."

"... Understand when I say don't lie. Don't lie about me either."

Dean — "No, I won't sir..."

Mortgage Subsidy Plan Could Face Presidential Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Middle-income Americans would be able to obtain federally subsidized mortgages under a House-passed bill aimed at stimulating the depressed housing industry.

The House passed the so-called Emergency Middle Income Housing Act Friday and sent it to the Senate by a 259-106 vote, despite warnings of a veto by President Ford. The vote margin was slightly above the two-thirds majority which would be needed to override a veto.

House Banking Chairman Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., had pushed the legislation as part of the Democratic leadership's economic revival program, saying that the economy will improve only when the homebuilding industry is helped out of its depression.

Democrats estimated that the $1.3 billion in subsidies on a $12 billion portfolio of houses would spur construction of about 400,000 new houses, putting hard-hit construction workers back to work.

Before the final vote, the House rejected, 242 to 126, a Republican substitute to extend existing federal programs that funnel more money into private mortgage lending markets.

Republicans said the housing industry appears to be recuperating on its own but the promise of cheap mortgage money sometime in the future would thwart its recovery.

But the Democrats said their subsidy plan was a better way to revive the homebuilding industry and help middle-class families buy homes.

The bill would lower mortgage interest rates temporarily to 6 per cent, with the subsidy ending after six years, or to 7 per cent for the life of the loan.

Of the $1.3 billion, 70 per cent would go for subsidies on purchases of newly constructed homes, with the remaining funds permitted for sales of the backlog of new but unsold homes and the existing stock of used homes.

Eligible buyers could earn no more than 120 per cent of their area's median income — with the average such income ranging between $15,000 and $18,000 — and could choose a home valued at no more than $38,000.

Ten per cent of the $1.3 billion in subsidy funds would be allocated to buyers in high-cost cities for purchases of homes valued up to $42,000.

However, in such cities as Atlanta, Dallas, Chicago, Detroit, New York, Seattle, Los Angeles, Houston and San Francisco, the median price for a new home exceeded $42,000 last winter.

Right now, for a person buying a $20,000 house with a 30-year mortgage at the current average competitive interest rate of 8.5 per cent, the monthly payments would be $153.70.

The bill would subsidize the interest payment, dropping it to 6 per cent interest and making the buyer's monthly payments $120. The subsidy would decline after the third year and end entirely after the sixth. The buyer then would have to pay current market interest for the balance of the loan.

If the ball is in deep grass or sand, lift it frowning as though you're not sure it belongs to you, then set it up on top of something. A tee will do. Lying and cheating are integral to golf.

Should you hole out in par or one over, your memory is razor sharp for the correct number. If it is a double bogey or more, turn on the green and look backwards, as though recounting the strokes. If you had an eight, tell the scorekeeper, "Five."

No matter how fast the foursome in front, keep yelling, "Fore!" at them. This makes them nervous. If the foursome behind you hits into your group, pause to glare backward, then hit the offending sphere into the rough. This is the ethical, gentlemanly side of the game.

When the round is over, give employees kind words instead of tips. Tell the caddy master he's the best. In the locker room, the man who has shined your shoes, knocked the mud out of your spikes and given you a bath towel for your shower should be awarded with the newest golf joke you have heard.

The kid who parked your car, and now lifts your heavy golf bag to the trunk should smile as you slam the door and yell, "Thanks. I'll take care of you next week."

On the way home, tell anybody who will listen that if only six of those putts that hung on the lip had gone in you'd have broken a hundred.

That's golf . . .

Jews Target Of Christians Through History

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first part of a five-part Easter series on the Jewishness of Jesus, dealing with the anti-Jewish record among Christians, the Strange Fury, and the turn against it.

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The heroic founder of Israel's ancient nationhood, the law-giver Moses, fasted for 40 days in the mountains before experiencing the blaze of revelation that produced the great, civilizing code of ethics, the Ten Commandments. Similarly, Jesus of Nazareth fasted for 40 days in the mountains before beginning a ministry that girdled the world.

His armor of conscience during his lonely, testing vigil in the hills was Judaism's guiding, first five books of the Bible, the Torah.

He drew strength from it while struggling against temptations to pursue power and fame rather than service. "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God!" he avowed, quoting Deuteronomy 8:3, in contention against showier objectives. "Begone Satan!"

"You shall worship the Lord your God and him only shall you serve," he insisted, from Deuteronomy 6:13, again citing the revered Torah. It was his shield against being swayed from his purpose, the standard of his people, and the ensign of the sacred covenant that distinguished them.

He was a Jew, and his life and teachings were spun out of that heritage. The faith he proclaimed was wrought from that fiber and built on that foundation. "We worship what we know, for salvation is from the Jews," he declared in John 4:22, stressing the universality of that legacy.

Yet in the centuries afterward, those who worshiped him came to revile and victimize the lineage he shared, heaping scorn on Jews, demeaning their faith, segregating them in ghettos, persecuting them, sometimes slaughtering them.

"In its overall context, it has been one of the most glaring religious perversions of history," says church historian Robert T. Handy, a Baptist. "It shows a streak of patricide, a psychotic impulse of the off-spring against the spiritual parent."

In modern times, however, a new, closer kinship with Judaism is reviving among Christians, restoring some of their ties, meshing their scholarship, bringing them together in common prayer, allying them in cooperative efforts.

"Christianity sprang from Judaism," point out Roman Catholic guidelines issued Jan. 3 by the Vatican, urging joint study, worship and work. "The spiritual bonds and historical links binding the church to Judaism... render obligatory better mutual understanding and renewed mutual esteem."

Similar declarations have come in recent times from numerous Protestant bodies and interdenominational councils.

In Scriptural terms, Gentile believers are "adopted" into the spiritual line of the mother faith of the Jews. The twin are in the positions of "elder and younger brothers," says Methodist theologian A. Roy Eckardt. As Catholic theologian Robert W. Gleason put it in a sermon:

"By virtue of natural, racial descent, I am a Gentile. By virtue of supernatural descent, by the grace of God, I am also a Jew... I rightly and proudly call Abraham and Isaac and Joseph my fathers. Their blood is in my veins. Because I am a Christian, I know the God of Israel; because I am a Christian, I pray the prayers of Israel... They also are my people, in the line of spiritual generation."

However, despite these ties, the past echoes with recurrent vilification and abuses of the Jews by churches, states, organizations and individuals. The blood-kin of Jesus have been hounded from country to country, banished from cities, offices and professions, restricted in dress, massacred in pogroms from the Crusades to the Nazi gas ovens of Auschwitz.

"The synagogue is worse than a brothel," wrote the fourth-century Syrian church leader John Chrysostom. "It is a den of scoundrels... They are lustful, rapacious, greedy, perfidious robbers." Other early church authorities voiced contempt for Judaism, spawning a long succession of hostility, false libels, insults and slaughters.

In their first years of co-existence, both Christians and Jews underwent brutal persecutions by the pagan Roman Empire, but after Emperor Constantine in 312 A. C. adopted Christianity as the state religion Jews were branded a "nefarious sect," banned from positions of authority, segregated from general community life. Anyone who converted to the "evil sect" of Judaism was ordered burned.

Across the empire, preachers vented tirades against the "vile Jews," the "Christ killers." The Crusaders of the 11th and 12th centuries pillaged Jewish settlements, looted synagogues and Jewish homes and slaughtered entire communities as being among the infidels. When a bubonic plague swept Europe in 1348-49, Jews were accused of having poisoned wells, and thousands were murdered in a wave of anti-Jewish terror.

Other false accusations and wild tales about Jews have surfaced repeatedly, charges of ritual murder, of using the blood of Gentile children, the fabricated "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," portraying an international Jewish conspiracy, a medieval forgery that since has cropped up regularly in this country and abroad.

Although the popes over the centuries occasionally admonished against mistreating Jews, the church generally fanned the animosity. Pope Innocent III in 1215 issued an edict requiring Jews to wear identifying garb, a pattern that spread over Europe, resembling the Hitler regime's requirement that Jews wear the star of David.

Measures by church synods through the centuries, prohibiting intermarriage with Jews, disqualifying them from public office, barring them from the streets on certain festival days, confining them to ghettos, also paralleled steps taken by 20th-century Nazism.

Protestantism, arising in the 16th century, also perpetuated the scorn for Jews. A "rejected, damned people," wrote the reformer Martin Luther. "Obstinate, disobedient, arrogant usurers and full of every vice." He advised Christians to burn their synagogues, schools and prayerbooks and forbid their rabbis to teach. "Let them wallow in misery and captivity..."

For 1,500 years, church and state combined to victimize Jews. Not until the 19th century did most countries grant them ordinary citizen rights, a process started by the 1789 French revolution. Sporadic pogroms still occurred, most ruthlessly in Russia in 1880, 1903 and 1907. But the extension of legal citizen rights to Jews generally was completed by the 1919 Treaty of Versailles.

Then, however, in the modern industrialized and educated world, the venom burst out again in its deadliest, most sweeping dimensions. In a predominantly Christian nation, Nazism's attempt to liquidate the Jews brought death to six million of them in Hitler's crematoriums and gas chambers.

Revulsion at the horror has stirred anguished rethinking, shame and soul-searching among Christians. "Every member of the early church including Jesus and Paul would have been marked to die at Auschwitz," observes Methodist theologian Franklin H. Littell.

However, the major churches now are working increasingly to get rid of lingering traces of anti-Jewish prejudice, to cleanse their teaching materials of subtle slurs, misrepresentations and stereotypes.

These elements are "sub-Christian and anti-Christian" and "threaten authentic Christian existence," says Methodist scholar Bernhard E. Olson, who led a broad-scale Yale study of church textbooks as part of an inter-church project to remedy the contents.

Advancing Biblical scholarship, including the Dead Sea scrolls and other recently unearthed ancient historical data, also has deepened the sense of the Jewish basis of Christianity. Jewish scholars now commonly hold posts in Christian seminaries.

"One cannot understand the gospels without knowing Judaism," says Rabbi Dr. David Neiman, on the theology faculty of Catholic Boston College. He says Jesus was a "great Jewish teacher," and Christianity is "becoming more and more aware of its Jewish heritage."

National and world interdenominational church bodies in recent times have condemned anti-Semitism, citing the Jewishness of Jesus, as have Roman Catholicism and many individual Protestant bodies. Jewish-Christian dialogues and joint projects have multiplied.

The development is bringing a "rediscovery" of Judaism's essentialness to the church, says Catholic scholar John M. Oesterreicher, long-time director of the Institute of Judeo-Christian Studies. He says Christians are "joint heirs, joint members, joint partners with the Jews" as God's people, and adds:

"We, the hostile kinsmen of yesterday, are learning to be loving brothers today and tomorrow."

Jesus' own ancestry, as sketched in the gospels of Matthew and Luke, stretched back through the olden patriarchs of Israel, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, a blood line extended through Israel's great kings, David and Solomon, and many commoners. "Son of David," Jesus was called "Son of Abraham."

The sign of his stock and faith had been put on him in infancy, at eight days of age, when his devoutly Jewish family had him circumcized, as related in Luke 2, symbolizing his incorporation into Israel's ancient covenant, making him an heir to God's promises to his forefathers.

"So shall my covenant be in your flesh an everlasting covenant," went the Scriptural mandate for the ceremony in Genesis 17:13.

In rearing him, his parents did "everything according to the law," Luke 2:39 relates, dedicating him at the Temple, training him in home and synagogue in Judaism's history, its Scriptures, its pointed stories, introducing him to festival pilgrimages to the Temple at the age of 12. It was a custom he continued, a lineage he honored.

He wasn't even acquainted with the term, "Christian." Only in years afterward was it applied to believers outside his homeland in the ancient Syrian city of Antioch. He himself never used the term or even heard of it.

Cement Company Saves Natural Gas

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — National Cement Products Co. found a way to cut by half the amount of natural gas it formerly used in making concrete blocks — the company's mainstay.

The secret: a new automated curing process called PetroCure.

National Cement official said the new process boosted the company's block-making capacity by 50 per cent — from 8 million blocks a year to 12 million.

The blocks are also stronger and cheaper to buy, added James R. Martin, executive vice president.

Developed by National Cement's own engineers, the PetroCure process was completed last December.

"If we hadn't made the changes when we did, we'd be out of business today," said Martin.

Toledo industries have suffered massive cutbacks in natural gas allocations.

Under its old curing process, National Cement used 198,000 cubic feet of gas and 26,000 gallons of water every 24 hours.

That's enough gas to supply the average Ohio household for almost 13 months, according to gas company statistics.

Luckily, National Cement had set its engineers to work on the problem before the cutback, back in the early days of the energy crisis.

Within months, they came up with PetroCure, a half-million dollar system replacing the old method, called autoclaving.

Autoclaving required huge pressure-cooker like containers generating 110,600 pounds of steam pressure.

In the PetroCure process, "green" blocks are cured in kilns.

The kilns use a hot oil transfer system to produce steam and heat for proper hydration of the cement.

The hot oil is in a closed, self-contained network that is almost totally recyclable, resulting in a major part of the fuel savings.

Martin said the water needed is insignificant compared to that used before.

Curing time is also saved — 16 hours with PetroCure vs. several days under autoclaving.

The company claims the new blocks are less susceptible to chipping because less moisture is involved in the new process.

And, the company has cut the cost of cement blocks by seven per cent.

5 Americans Jailed In Spain

MALAGA, Spain (AP)—Three Ohioans were among five Americans given prison sentences and fined Saturday for drug convictions.

David Frankovich, 22, and Gary Frankovich, 25, of Gifford Lake, Ohio, and Lester Carl Syx, 24, of Hanoverton, Ohio, were sentenced to six years and a day each and fined $350 each.

Receiving the same penalties were George Robert Casto, 16, and Dennis Paul Scullion, 23, both of Salem, Mass.

They were charged with drug possession and trafficking after police seized 150 pounds of hashish from a van parked outside their house last June.

Hot new source for gas.

One of the hottest new sources for natural gas is the frozen north.

America badly needs supplies of the clean gas energy available there to help solve the energy crisis.

Columbia has gone to the Arctic to get this gas:

- we're financing drilling programs in Alaska and Canada, including on the far islands of the high Arctic.
- we've gotten the rights to purchase substantial gas reserves already discovered on Alaska's North Slope. Once the Alaskan oil pipeline gets started, a natural gas line can also be built from the North Slope. We can't produce the gas until oil production is underway.
- we're participating in costly environmental and engineering studies on how to build gas lines from the frozen north to consumers in Columbia's service area.

There's much work yet to do, but gas from the far north will be coming along. Columbia Gas is working hard today to meet your energy needs tomorrow.

Natural gas pipelines from the Arctic will be built with proper regard for the area they cross. A study group in which Columbia participates has operated complex test sites and conducted lengthy field studies to examine the impact of a gas line on the land and waterways and the wildlife that inhabit them. These studies are providing the data necessary to meet growing energy needs with minimum disturbance of the environment.

MISS TERI BUSKIRK

Miss Teri Buskirk, Michael Dougherty To Wed In June

Miss Teri Buskirk and Michael Dougherty have selected June 28th as the date for their wedding at Faith United Methodist Church in Middletown, Ohio.

The engagement and forthcoming marriage is announced by Miss Buskirk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lansaw of Middletown, formerly of Circleville. Mr. Dougherty is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dougherty of Middletown.

The bride elect is a senior at Madison High School near Middletown and is employed at Hills Department Store.

Her fiancé is a 1974 graduate of Lemon-Monroe High School, Monroe, Ohio and is employed by Crystal Tissue Co., Middletown.

Missionary Society Elects Officers

Officers were elected during the recent meeting of Missionary Society, Laurelville Church of God, at the church. Margie Ebert, president, read scripture from II Thessalonians to open the meeting she presided over with 12 members present.

Elected were: Judy Summers, president; Janice Hardman, historian, Ruth Reid, parliamentarian; Marilyn Fry, director of stewardship; Vonnie Mocabee and Margie Ebert, directors of finance; Judy Clifton, publication chairman and Jean Johnston, assistant.

Plans were made for the Laurelville Alumni Banquet to be held on May 17th. The society will cook and help serve the dinner.

It was agreed to send an offering to Project Amego to help the needy in Mexico and Latin America. Suggestions were made for a Mother and Daughter banquet, a Father and Son banquet and a group camping trip.

For devotions Josephine Hardman read scripture from Job 15 and two poems, "Drew Them Away" and "The Way Of The Cross Leads To God." Marilyn Fry read the poem "The Old Church Bell Ringer."

The closing prayer was by Josephine Hardman and refreshments were served by Ruth Reid.

Birthday Parties Fete George Dumm

George Dumm of Laurelville was guest of honor at a birthday party Sunday hosted by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Dumm, at McDonald's Restaurant in Chillicothe.

Assisting George celebrate his 3rd birthday were: Kim Hinton, Denise Barton, Bobby Platz, Kim, Karla and Bryan Robinson; Angie Myers, Jacque Huffman, Randall Hunt and Kim Stinard.

Also present were the honored guest's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Dumm, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Stinard.

Unable to attend but sending gifts were Holly Whitecraft, Brad Adams, Rob Grooms and Petula Dumm.

On Saturday evening a party was held at the Dumm residence attended by Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Dumm, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Stinard, Kim Stinard, Randall Hunt and George's great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Hunt.

Girl Scout Unit Schedule Events

Girl Scout Logan Trails Service Unit met recently in the Trinity Lutheran Parish House.

Service director, Barbara Armstrong, opened the meeting by discussing upcoming events. Brownie Day is May 3rd. If it rains, the individual troops are to have their own events.

Day Camp registrations are due May 1st. The Recognition Luncheon will be on Thursday, May 8th at noon. Marian Fisher reported on a successful cookie sale this year.

The next meeting of the unit will be April 10th, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., at Camp Miska, with the program being the seven basic skills.

MISS LISA HENDERSON

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Henderson, 209 N. Scioto St., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lisa, to James M. Holloway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lou Holloway, 3316 Sunhaven Oval, Cleveland.

Miss Henderson is a graduate of Circleville High School and is a junior in hearing and speech therapy at Ohio University in Athens.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Normandy High School and from pre-dentistry at Ohio University, Athens. He has been accepted into dental school at the Ohio State University where he will begin his studies in July. A June wedding is being planned.

AAUW Members Meet With Rep. Myrl Shoemaker

Representative Myrl Shoemaker of Chillicothe met with Yvonne Lackey, Carol Rorick, Lucille Scott, Jane Vance and Jean Droste, members of Circleville Branch of American Assn. of University Women on Legislation Day recently sponsored by Ohio Division AAUW.

The day began with a Continental Breakfast and briefing session at the Columbus YWCA. The women toured the Capitol Building before attending committee hearings to observe the House and Senate leaders working on legislation.

Highlight of the day was having lunch with the Legislators that represented the district of the branch's location. The women then had the opportunity to attend a General Session of the House and Senate ending the day with a tour of the new State Office Building.

Hostesses for the event were members of the Circleville and Westerville Branches.

Guid Seeking Local Recipes

Berger Hospital Guild 52 is compiling a cookbook which will feature recipes from cooks of Circleville and all Pickaway County.

All area cooks are encouraged to enter their specialties or favorite recipes, which will be printed in the book along with the donor's name. For more information call Yvonne McGinnis at 474-4713.

The book will be on sale this fall, but advance orders are being taken. To order your copy call Kay Sahr 474-7989.

All proceeds from the sale of the cookbook will be used to aid in purchasing the guild's annual gift to the hospital.

News Of Interest To Women
The Circleville Herald, Monday March 24, 1975

MISS TERI BUSKIRK

Miss Teri Buskirk, Michael Dougherty To Wed In June

Miss Teri Buskirk and Michael Dougherty have selected June 28th as the date for their wedding at Faith United Methodist Church in Middletown, Ohio.

The engagement and forthcoming marriage is announced by Miss Buskirk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lansaw of Middletown, formerly of Circleville. Mr. Dougherty is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dougherty of Middletown.

The bride elect is a senior at Madison High School near Middletown and is employed at Hills Department Store.

Her fiancé is a 1974 graduate of Lemon-Monroe High School, Monroe, Ohio and is employed by Crystal Tissue Co., Middletown.

Missionary Society Elects Officers

Officers were elected during the recent meeting of Missionary Society, Laurelville Church of God, at the church. Margie Ebert, president, read scripture from II Thessalonians to open the meeting she presided over with 12 members present.

Elected were: Judy Summers, president; Janice Hardman, historian, Ruth Reid, parliamentarian; Marilyn Fry, director of stewardship; Vonnie Mocabee and Margie Ebert, directors of finance; Judy Clifton, publication chairman and Jean Johnston, assistant.

Plans were made for the Laurelville Alumni Banquet to be held on May 17th. The society will cook and help serve the dinner.

It was agreed to send an offering to Project Amego to help the needy in Mexico and Latin America. Suggestions were made for a Mother and Daughter banquet, a Father and Son banquet and a group camping trip.

For devotions Josephine Hardman read scripture from Job 15 and two poems, "Drew Them Away" and "The Way Of The Cross Leads To God." Marilyn Fry read the poem "The Old Church Bell Ringer."

The closing prayer was by Josephine Hardman and refreshments were served by Ruth Reid.

Birthday Parties

Fete George Dumm

George Dumm of Laurelville was guest of honor at a birthday party Sunday hosted by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Dumm, at McDonald's Restaurant in Chillicothe.

Assisting George celebrate his 3rd birthday were: Kim Hinton, Denise Barton, Bobby Platz, Kim, Karla and Bryan Robinson; Angie Myers, Jacque Huffman, Randall Hunt and Kim Stinard.

Also present were the honored guest's grandparent's, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Dumm, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Stinard.

Unable to attend but sending gifts were Holly Whitecraft, Brad Adams, Rob Grooms and Petula Dumm.

On Saturday evening a party was held at the Dumm residence attended by Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Dumm, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Stinard, Kim Stinard, Randall Hunt and George's great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Hunt.

Judges Criticized For Outside Income Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — A requirement that federal judges publicly report certain outside earnings has led to formal criticism of some activities of about 30 judges or magistrates.

A nationwide Associated Press survey of the most recent reports, required twice a year for the last two years, shows that fewer than one of every 10 federal jurists earns money away from the bench.

An even smaller proportion reported potential conflicts of interest, gifts or expense reimbursements in excess of actual costs.

There were some findings in those cases that certain conduct by judges was prohibited or undesirable, following examination of the reports by the Advisory Committee on Judicial Activities of the Judicial Conference.

Names of judges who were formally criticized, or specific details of the findings against them, were not made public.

Judge Edward A. Tamm, who receives the judicial nonsalary income reports, did say that of the more than 40 opinions issued by the advisory committee, about 75 per cent ruled against the activities reported by the judges.

Beyond the formal criticism, no further sanctions are provided for.

"I think we're making progress" toward eliminating instances of real, potential or seeming conflict of interest, said Tamm, who sits on the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

Tamm also said he hopes case finding eventually will be made public, as are the original reports.

The outside activity reports provide only a partial picture of judges' personal finances. Only income earned for services, such as writing or lectures, need be reported.

Income from such sources as interest, dividends or sale of property is not listed in the reports.

The reports are filed at federal courthouses every six months under provisions of the American Bar Association's code of judicial conduct and implementing action taken in 1973 by the Judicial Conference of the United States.

The AP checked records for every U.S. district court and U.S. court of appeals in the 50 states and District of Columbia. Reports were totaled for 438 judges and an additional 109 senior judges — those retired or past the age of 70, but who may still hear cases.

Bankruptcy judges and U.S. magistrates also must file reports, but these were not included in the AP study.

Supreme Court justices are not required to file reports, although it was the outside financial activities of former Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas which in part led to the reporting requirement.

A few judges object to the reporting requirement as an infringement on the independence of the judiciary. Timely reports for the period ended Dec. 31, 1974 were not found on file for 21 judges.

One of these, Judge Inzer B. Wyatt of the southern district of New York, wrote to a law publication in 1971 when reporting requirements were under discussion:

"Filing financial reports would not deter a corrupt judge; such a one would simply file false reports."

Although the document form is titled "Public Report of Extra-Judicial Income," Chief Judge Frank H. McFadden of the northern district of Alabama would not permit a newsman to examine reports filed there.

Tamm said that when his review committee questions judges about their reports, "most of the letters we get back are indignant."

In most cases, however, the committee is satisfied with a judge's explanation of an event. But what Tamm called black or gray situations are referred to the advisory committee for a formal finding.

In the reports checked by AP, 49 judges and senior judges reported earning outside income which totaled $96,622.20 — or an average of less than $2,000 each. About one-fifth of that sum consisted of old private legal fees received by four recent appointees to the bench.

District court judges are paid $40,000 a year. Appeals judges get $42,500.

Well over half the specified sources of outside income were speeches, lectures and teaching assignments — most often to law schools or legal groups.

Nine judges reported income as trustees and five listed book royalties.

Perhaps the most unique listing was $130.58 received by Judge Richard Owen of the southern district of New York for royalties on music composition.

The highest listed figure, excluding pre-appointment legal fees, was $14,265.27 reported by Judge Jack B. Weinstein of the eastern district of New York.

He earned $7,000 for teaching law at Columbia University approximately five hours a week, $5,236.12 for royalties from previously published books and $2,029.15 from a publishers as an expense advance against future royalties.

Eighteen judges answered affirmatively to a question on whether they had participated in any case where they or a member of their family might have a financial interest.

Most of these were instances where a judge or family member held a small amount of stock in a corporation involved in a case. In most of these cases, the judges reported, attorneys for both sides were advised and did not object to the judge continuing to hear the case.

Under a new law passed in December, said Judge Tamm, judges must disqualify themselves from such cases even if attorneys don't object.

In the reports checked by AP, 10 judges listed gifts they had received. Although the form said only gifts valued at more than $100 need be reported, one judge reported receipt of a $60 wooden chair bearing the seal of Boston University law school, where he had participated in a moot court.

STUDENT PLANTERS—Circleville High School students planting the last of about 200 evergreens that will be used as a windbreak are Tom McGuire, Art Davis, Bryan Price, Dave Uland, Jeff Davies, Joel Baker, Tom Scherer, and Rojanne Bowers.

Red Cross Services Depend On Volunteers

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article is one of a series sponsored by The Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce as a public information project involving local health service agencies.

The Pickaway County Chapter, American Red Cross is one of 3100 chapters serving all areas of the United States. Red Cross is an international organization with contacts in almost all countries in the world. Services performed by the chapter in Circleville and world-wide depend to a great degree on volunteers who number 10 to every 1 staff person. Decisions locally and nation-wide are made by volunteer Boards of Directors.

The services of the Pickaway County Chapter include Service to Military Families and Disaster Assistance, both of which are mandated by the Congressional Charter granted in 1905. Service men and their families are given message service in family emergencies, financial assistance when needed and counseling in personal and family problems. Red Cross is responsible for immediate assistance to people suffering disaster from home fires to tornadoes or floods. This includes food, clothing, shelter and medical care until referral can be made to other agencies and the government. In addition the total blood needs of all Pickaway County residents and their immediate families are met through the Red Cross Blood Program. Lessons in First Aid, Water Safety and Nursing services are given with the help of volunteer instructors. The volunteer program of the chapter offers the opportunity for people to make use of their time and talents in service to their community at Berger Hospital, the rest homes and other agencies and in driving the chapter cars, transporting patients to hospitals, clinics and doctors. All services of Red Cross are given free of any charge to the recipients. The total budget of the chapter is met through its partnership in Pickaway County Community Fund. These funds cover rent, utilities, cost of gasoline and service for the cars, salaries and expenditures in operation of the various programs.

Recipients of Red Cross services include all residents of the Community, since there is no family which might not, at some time, have need of one or more of them: swimming or First Aid lessons, blood to save lives or contact with a family member in the Armed Services.

Moundbuilders Hear Air Traffic Control Problems

The Kiwanis Club of Circleville-Moundbuilders met Tuesday morning at the Pickaway Arms with John Johnson presiding.

The Charter Night committee announced that Charter Night would be Tuesday, April 22, at the Circleville High School with a social hour beginning at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. Cost will be $6 per person.

Don Hahn, District Lieutenant Governor, made announcements of upcoming activities for district Kiwanians.

George Huskey, project chairman, said that 30 additional cases of popcorn had been ordered and that money from popcorn sales should be turned in to him by March 25.

Ray Cundiff accompanied by Barbara Painter led the club in singing.

Gladden Troutman, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Capt. William Meyers, squadron commander of the communications squadron, air traffic control tower and radar, at Ricken-backer Air Force Base. Capt. Meyers discussed his duties and experiences in air traffic control work.

Dick Moon, house and reception committee chairman, introduced visiting Kiwanians Charles Hart, William Bradshaw, Charles Reid, Dwight Steele, Hahn, and Cundiff.

Guests at the meeting were James Mertes, personnel director at Owens-Illinois, and Capt. Meyers.

Next meeting of the Moundbuilders will be Tuesday, March 25, at 7 a.m. at the Pickaway Arms. Persons interested in joining Circleville's newest service club are invited to attend.

Cass Daley Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former film and radio comedienne Cass Daley, 59, died late Saturday when she fell on a broken glass goblet and cut her neck. Miss Daley, who appeared in a dozen films in the 1940s, was attempting a career comeback.

Nation's Rich Given Nudge By Recession

By LEE MITGANG

The nation's rich are feeling the recession, too. But for them, it's a recession on cat's feet: very quiet, but the claws are still there. "I go to Europe at least three times a year, but I haven't gone this year and I may not next," says a tennis player waiting for a court at a Great Neck, N.Y., indoor tennis club.

Tito Bags Bear On Hunting Trip

BUGOJNO, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito bagged an "enormous" brown bear during a weekend hunting trip with President Urho Kekkonen of Finland, according to the official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug.

Tanjug said the bear had eluded Tito on previous hunting trips but the 82-year-old president brought it down with one shot on Saturday.

Tito and the visiting Finnish president took an hour Sunday to review the international situation and bilateral relations but most of the weekend was spent relaxing and hunting.

Ohio Rail Service Not Yet Ruled Out

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility of beginning rail service to Cleveland and Toledo this summer has not been ruled out by Amtrak, says U.S. Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio.

Taft said Friday he has been advised by Jerry Friedheim, vice president for government affairs of Amtrak, that the proposal is being "seriously considered."

On New York's Fifth Avenue, Cartier's jewelry store president Fred Montezinos says, "People still pick up a $175,000 piece without batting an eye." Down the street at Abercrombie & Fitch, antique guns for $8,000 to $45,000 are selling as fast as the store can stock them.

The recession is producing contradictory alterations in wealthy Americans' spending habits and lifestyles. Where cutbacks occur, they have not been particularly drastic.

In Great Neck, Nob Hill, Grosse Pointe, Shaker Heights, Ohio, Philadelphia Main Line suburbs, Highland Park, Texas, and Winnetka — all among the richest communities in the nation — The Associated Press found wealthy Americans who:

—Are switching to chicken but still shop at gourmet food stores.

—Are camping on their vacations but drive to their campsites in new Mercedes Benzs.

—Take several weekend trips to Florida or Palm Springs on a moment's notice but still feel they can't afford a European trip.

The recession's impact on a wealthy family also seems to depend on what part of the country it lives in. Residents of Grosse Pointe, many of whom took their wealth from America's car craze, are cutting back more perceptibly than some other rich communities.

In wealthy Highland Park, an incorporated community surrounded by Dallas, the financial capital of the Southwest, resident Al Cooter, owner of several camera shops, asks with a smile, "Recession? What recession? Things are fine here."

But a walk down Middle Neck Road, Great Neck's main street, reveals signs of business problems: storefronts advertising sales in clothing, books and jewelry, all of which sold effortlessly in better times in the fashion-conscious Long Island community.

Many in Great Neck made fortunes in New York City's garment district and on Wall Street, and they're now feeling the slump in both fields.

There are signs, too, that more wives in wealthy households are looking for jobs in an effort to maintain a high living standard.

Truly puzzling behavior is to be found at Great Neck's dinner tables and on those of some other wealthy areas.

UMW President To Carry Gun

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Arnold Miller, president of the United Mine Workers, will apply "for a license to carry a dangerous weapon," according to a legal advertisement in the Charleston Gazette on Saturday.

Miller will formally apply before Kanawha County Circuit Judge Patrick Casey on April 7, the advertisement said.

Miller was not available for comment. He is a resident of Ohley in Kanawha County.

In the past, Miller has said he has been threatened and has traveled with a bodyguard at times.

If someone else's phone system sounds too good to be true, maybe it is.

Sooner or later, you may be swept off your feet by one of those new, improved money-saving phone systems that seem to do about everything but shine shoes.

Which is fine. But highly specialized equipment needs a highly specialized service force to back it up. And when it comes to service, no one has the men, the available equipment, the total experience to service your phone faster than the phone company. And when your business depends on the phone, that's something to think twice about.

But if you'd rather think about those fancy phones, listen to this: we can provide any service benefit or feature that any other supplier can. So talk to other companies. Then talk to us. We're only a phone call away.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Gums Up The Works

DEAR ABBY: I am employed at a very large convalescent home. One of the elderly residents here lost her dentures, so with a pillow case in hand she crept into the rooms of the other occupants while they were sleeping and picked up each pair of false teeth from the water glasses. She then returned to her room and tried each set until she found one that fit her. She then sneakily returned any set of teeth to the water glasses.

The next morning, everyone was walking around the place with overbites and underslung jaws, complaining bitterly that their dentures didn't fit!

How do we straighten out this mess? Or must we buy new dentures for 100 residents?

and ask him to examine the mouths of the patients and the dentures, in order to return them to their rightful owners. I am told that denture-marking kits are available. Get one, and use it, before another teeth thief gums up the works again.

DEAR ABBY: What do the experts say about children sleeping with their parents in case of divorce? Please be explicit.

I have been keeping company with a 44-year-old divorced man for three years. He has three daughters, aged 13, 11 and 8 and he feels it is all right for them to sleep with him until the age of 10 or 11. I don't.

When the girls visit him overnight they ask to sleep with him, and he sees nothing wrong with it. The 11-year-old shared his bed until only recently, and the 8-year-old still does. The little one is seeing a psychologist weekly, and her mother is seeing a psychiatrist regularly, which I hope is beneficial to both.

My friend is a very kind and sensitive man who would not intentionally hurt anyone, but I feel he is off his mark with regard to bed-sharing. What do you say?

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: I agree that a father should not encourage daughters of this age to share his bed. Not only could this have conscious (or unconscious) sexual overtones for the father as well as for the daughters, but it also tends to foster a dependency in the children that is not in their best interest.

The fact that one of the daughters is in therapy underscores these points, but they could be equally true for the daughter not in therapy. At the very least, I would expect this "well-meaning" father would check this matter out with his daughter's therapist.

DEAR ABBY: The wife and I are having an argument. We received a crate of fruit this morning. It was a gift from her parents who vacation in Florida every winter.

The box contained oranges and grapefruit. Half the grapefruit were rotten, and only two oranges were worth keeping. We threw out the rest.

I say her parents laid out good money for that fruit and we should tell them what condition they arrived in. She says there is nothing they can do about it, so why make them feel bad? Whose side are you on?

STEVE

DEAR STEVE: Yours. And there is something they can do about it. They can go back to where they bought the fruit and register a complaint. (Maybe the shipper is to blame.) In any case, it would be a kindness to her parents to tell them the truth. So tell them.

LOUISE HILL

Bookkeeping, Tax Service Office Opened

Louise Hill, bookkeeper and income tax practitioner, has opened a new office at 157 West Main Street in Circleville. Her office is in the former Scioto Building and Loan building, where she is sharing office space with James R. Kingsley, attorney at law. Ms. Hill was located at 113 South Court Street.

A graduate of the Bliss Business College, Ms. Hill previously had operated a tax franchise for CenCor (now Mr. Tax) and has completed the H & R Block tax course. She has also attended Ohio State University.

For the last five years Ms. Hill has been serving Pickaway County under the name of Louise Hill Bookkeeping and Income Tax Service. Ms. Hill feels that it is good economics for a business man to be free of the time-consuming mechanics of accounting and bookkeeping. Her service maintains a well-kept set of records on a weekly or monthly basis. The time and the taxes saved by her service pays for itself.

Ms. Hill has expanded her facilities at her new location to better serve her old clients and accommodate new ones.

Pope Paul VI Officiates At Mass

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI officiated at Palm Sunday Mass in St. Peter's Square, opening Holy Week for Roman Catholics.

The 77-year-old pontiff dedicated the open air Mass to the youth of the world, calling on them to be "bearers of faith and joy, bearers of palms, the symbol of the new spring."

A crowd of about 40,000, mostly teenagers from many countries, attended the Mass.

Y Drill Team Director Announced

Harold Hewitt, director of the Pickaway County Family YMCA, announced today that Mrs. Melanie A. Weaver of Oak Park, will be the new director of the YMCA Drill team.

Mrs. Weaver, who attended both Ohio State and Ohio University, also has a background in baton and dance instruction. She formerly was also a dancing instructor for Patricia DeMent in Zanesville. Mrs. Weaver replaces Mrs. Bev Hanley, who helped to form the local organization.

The drill team practices will be held on Thursday evenings, 5:15 to 6:15 p.m. at the Lutheran parish house under Mrs. Weavers' direction. She will be assisted by Miss Rhonda Vineyard.

To be eligible for the drill team, participants must have at least two previous classes of baton instruction.

The YMCA also provides classes of instruction for those interested in learning baton.

For the Spring Informal Education quarter Miss Vineyard will be the instructor for girls three and up at 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., Wednesdays; and for first graders and up, 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., Wednesdays. Both of these classes will be held at the Lutheran Parish house. Miss Vineyard will also offer an Advanced Twirling and Specialties Class, provided there are enough interested students.

Registration for these classes can be made at the YMCA office, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and classes are slated to begin the week of April 7.

Elliot Richardson Eyes Presidency

LONDON (AP) — Ambassador Elliot L. Richardson wants to be President of the United States, according to the Sunday Times magazine.

"I suppose it's like climbing Mt. Everest: if you're a mountaineer, it's the most demanding," Richardson was quoted as saying. "I've had experience in various forms of public service for so long, I'm sure I would feel this would—more than any other possible role—demand every ounce of experience and ability, energy and stamina that I could give it."

The magazine said Richardson, 54, is "one of the most popular and respected politicians in America today" and that he "wants to be President."

and ask him to examine the mouths of the patients and the dentures, in order to return them to their rightful owners. I am told that denture-marking kits are available. Get one, and use it, before another teeth thief gums up the works again.

DEAR ABBY: What do the experts say about children sleeping with their parents in case of divorce? Please be explicit.

I have been keeping company with a 44-year-old divorced man for three years. He has three daughters, aged 13, 11 and 8 and he feels it is all right for them to sleep with him until the age of 10 or 11. I don't.

When the girls visit him overnight they ask to sleep with him, and he sees nothing wrong with it. The 11-year-old shared his bed until only recently, and the 8-year-old still does. The little one is seeing a psychologist weekly, and her mother is seeing a psychiatrist regularly, which I hope is beneficial to both.

My friend is a very kind and sensitive man who would not intentionally hurt anyone, but I feel he is off his mark with regard to bed-sharing. What do you say?

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: I agree that a father should not encourage daughters of this age to share his bed. Not only could this have conscious (or unconscious) sexual overtones for the father as well as for the daughters, but it also tends to foster a dependency in the children that is not in their best interest.

The fact that one of the daughters is in therapy underscores these points, but they could be equally true for the daughter not in therapy. At the very least, I would expect this "well-meaning" father would check this matter out with his daughter's therapist.

DEAR ABBY: The wife and I are having an argument. We received a crate of fruit this morning. It was a gift from her parents who vacation in Florida every winter.

The box contained oranges and grapefruit. Half the grapefruit were rotten, and only two oranges were worth keeping. We threw out the rest.

I say her parents laid out good money for that fruit and we should tell them what condition they arrived in. She says there is nothing they can do about it, so why make them feel bad? Whose side are you on?

STEVE

DEAR STEVE: Yours. And there is something they can do about it. They can go back to where they bought the fruit and register a complaint. (Maybe the shipper is to blame.) In any case, it would be a kindness to her parents to tell them the truth. So tell them.

LOUISE HILL

Bookkeeping, Tax Service Office Opened

Louise Hill, bookkeeper and income tax practitioner, has opened a new office at 157 West Main Street in Circleville. Her office is in the former Scioto Building and Loan building, where she is sharing office space with James R. Kingsley, attorney at law. Ms. Hill was located at 113 South Court Street.

A graduate of the Bliss Business College, Ms. Hill previously had operated a tax franchise for CenCor (now Mr. Tax) and has completed the H & R Block tax course. She has also attended Ohio State University.

For the last five years Ms. Hill has been serving Pickaway County under the name of Louise Hill Bookkeeping and Income Tax Service. Ms. Hill feels that it is good economics for a business man to be free of the time-consuming mechanics of accounting and bookkeeping. Her service maintains a well-kept set of records on a weekly or monthly basis. The time and the taxes saved by her service pays for itself.

Ms. Hill has expanded her facilities at her new location to better serve her old clients and accommodate new ones.

Pope Paul VI Officiates At Mass

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI officiated at Palm Sunday Mass in St. Peter's Square, opening Holy Week for Roman Catholics.

The 77-year-old pontiff dedicated the open air Mass to the youth of the world, calling on them to be "bearers of faith and joy, bearers of palms, the symbol of the new spring."

A crowd of about 40,000, mostly teenagers from many countries, attended the Mass.

Y Drill Team Director Announced

Harold Hewitt, director of the Pickaway County Family YMCA, announced today that Mrs. Melanie A. Weaver of Oak Park, will be the new director of the YMCA Drill team.

Mrs. Weaver, who attended both Ohio State and Ohio University, also has a background in baton and dance instruction. She formerly was also a dancing instructor for Patricia DeMent in Zanesville. Mrs. Weaver replaces Mrs. Bev Hanley, who helped to form the local organization.

The drill team practices will be held on Thursday evenings, 5:15 to 6:15 p.m. at the Lutheran parish house under Mrs. Weavers' direction. She will be assisted by Miss Rhonda Vineyard.

To be eligible for the drill team, participants must have at least two previous classes of baton instruction.

The YMCA also provides classes of instruction for those interested in learning baton.

For the Spring Informal Education quarter Miss Vineyard will be the instructor for girls three and up at 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., Wednesdays; and for first graders and up, 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., Wednesdays. Both of these classes will be held at the Lutheran Parish house. Miss Vineyard will also offer an Advanced Twirling and Specialties Class, provided there are enough interested students.

Registration for these classes can be made at the YMCA office, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and classes are slated to begin the week of April 7.

Elliot Richardson Eyes Presidency

LONDON (AP) — Ambassador Elliot L. Richardson wants to be President of the United States, according to the Sunday Times magazine.

"I suppose it's like climbing Mt. Everest: if you're a mountaineer, it's the most demanding," Richardson was quoted as saying. "I've had experience in various forms of public service for so long, I'm sure I would feel this would—more than any other possible role—demand every ounce of experience and ability, energy and stamina that I could give it."

The magazine said Richardson, 54, is "one of the most popular and respected politicians in America today" and that he "wants to be President."

Princeton Wins NIT Title

NEW YORK (AP) — You don't have to be great to play basketball for Princeton—only smart.

The flawless Tigers proved Sunday that brains were far better than brawn while winning the 38th National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

"This team is smart and courageous and how can you beat brains and courage?" Princeton Coach Pete Carril noted with smug satisfaction after his "textbook" Tigers whipped the Providence Friars 80-69 in the title game.

To be sure, Sunday's victory was a clinic in basketball—as were Princeton's first three victories in the tournament.

When Providence went into a full-court press in the first half, the Tigers broke it by running with the ball. When Providence went into a zone defense in the second half, Princeton killed it by sitting on the ball.

The Tigers became the first Ivy League team in history to win the NIT—and they did it with stunning impact. Rarely has one team done so much with so little in a season.

"I don't remember the odds ever being so big against a team I've coached," said Carril. "We lost our first-string center early in the season and we were down to 10 men, seven of them guards.

"In this tournament, we were in a rough bracket. We have no advantages. We don't give basketball scholarships."

When the 16-field team was chosen, Princeton was not even given a chance of getting through the early rounds. But the Tigers, with their conservative, classical style, beat Holy Cross 84-63, South Carolina 86-67 and Oregon 58-57 en route to the chamampionship round.

Carril and his 6-foot-8 center, Ian Ramati, were in a gloating mood after the four-game sweep gave the Tigers 13 straight victories.

"The difference between the Ivy League and the rest of the country is that it doesn't get a lot of publicity," said Carril.

"Now we can laugh at all those other

McKinley Wins AAA Title

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A wave of mistakes submerged that giddy championship feeling for Jene Smith, a perfectionist who serves as coach of 1975 Class AAA Ohio champion Columbus Linden-McKinley.

"I should be overcome, but I just wish we had played a better game," the first-year mentor said of the mercurial Panthers' 77-72 basketball title victory over Cleveland Heights Saturday night.

"I'm sorry our team played so badly. We made so many mistakes (30 errors), it was beginning to be unreal," added Smith, a disciple of Vince Chickerella, the 1967 coach of the Panthers.

In later years for Chickerella, Smith, once an Otterbein College student manager, served as a scout, statistician and assistant coach for the Capital University mentor.

Linden-McKinley was the only former titleholder to duplicate their earlier feats in the 1975 championships at Ohio State University.

teams because we're winners," grinned Ramati.

The Tigers took charge of the game behind Tim Van Blommestein midway through the second half. The Princeton guard scored 23 points and came off the bench to ignite a rally after intermission that provided the knockout blow over the reeling Friars. Mickey Steurer scored a game-high 26 points for Princeton, many of them at the end when the Tigers had the NIT's silver championship cup locked up. Gary Bello led Providence with 22.

Ron Lee, who scored 31 points in leading Oregon to an 80-76 overtime victory over St. John's in the third place game earlier Sunday, was voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Bears outscored the Tigers 9-4 in the extra three minutes to finish 25-1.

Frankie Sanders, Stivers' state Class AA Player of the Year, scored 31 points in vain. John Williams, a second team All-Ohioan, powered River View with 25 points.

Indian Valley, in the state finals for the third time in four years, fell short with a storybook finish. The Rebels trailed 54-48 with 34 seconds left in regulation, tied the game at 54-54 then lost it to Marion's foul shooting in overtime.

The Mercer County victors sank five free throws to one basket for the Rebels in the extra three minutes to finish the Tuscarawas Countians with a 20-6 mark.

Both sides have most of their guns back, causing Marion Coach Irv Besecker to say: "I just hope both of us make it back here next year. That could even be a better game."

Harry Huggins, the junior son of Indian Valley Coach Charlie Huggins, hit 10 straight foul shots and had 30 points. Steve Hartings, a Murion junior, fired in 21 to pace the Flyers, 25-1.

Kentucky Wildcats Reach Semifinals

ONE HAPPY BUNCH—This was the Kentucky Wildcat wild scene after the Wildcats defeated number-one ranked Indiana Hoosiers, 92-90, to win the NCAA Midwest Regional championship at the University of Dayton, Ohio, Arena. Coach Joe Hall is at left, center.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — There is very little time to reflect on past glories in the NCAA collegiate basketball tournament.

The Kentucky Wildcats decided they were entitled to a few moments of jubilation after they had toppled top-ranked Indiana Saturday 92-90, but everyone knew things would soon be back to normal.

"It'll be good to savor this victory for a little while," said senior Mike Flynn, who led the Kentucky attack with 22 points, "but come Monday, Coach Hall will be yelling at us, getting us ready for the next game."

The next game will be Saturday against Syracuse in the NCAA semifinals at San Diego.

Against Indiana, it was Kentucky which played the role of the giantkiller. Now the fifth-ranked Wildcats have found their role reversed against Syracuse, which toppled North Carolina and Kansas State.

Hall admitted that the pressure of a 34-game winning streak put extra pressure on Indiana.

"It's a great burden to carry that record into the tournament," Hall said. "We put greater pressure on Indiana because of their undefeated record and ranking."

Hall said his basketball team, with its nucleus of established seniors, came of age against Indiana.

"We are a great basketball team with that performance," Hall said. "Since we lost our third game to Indiana, we were determined to play aggressive basketball. That's what we did Saturday."

It was that 98-74 loss to the Hoosiers that was a motivating factor in Kentucky's comeback. Since that time the Wildcats freshmen centers Rick Robey and Mike Phillips have improved considerably, according to their coach and teammates.

"Our freshmen are like a breath of fresh air," said Dan Conner, who scored 17 points against Indiana. "They've brought in a new enthusiasm."

"For the seniors, it's a dream come true," said Flynn. "It's a dream that's taken four years to come about."

For Indiana, it was merely a rude awakening.

"We're down now," said Hoosier Coach Bobby Knight after the game, "but we'll be back."

The best National League hitting streak was turned in last season by Willie Montanez of the Phillies. He hit in 24 straight games.

The Philadelphia Phillies have 11 rookies on their spring roster. Six of them are pitchers.

PCFS Association Holds Meeting

Seventy-four members were present at the regular meeting of the Pickaway County Farmers and Sportsmens Association March 20 at the Indoor Range Building Pickaway County Fairgrounds.

A discussion was held on painting the barn at the club area and it was decided to paint the barn as soon as weather permits. A work session is planned for 9 a.m. March 22 when repairs to the barn and tree planting will take place.

The High Powered Rifle Committee announced the first Great Seal Of Ohio 30-caliber rifle match will be held April 19-20 at Camp Sherman Range, Chillicothe.

The club formerly held its senior rifle and pistol matches preceding each monthly meeting. It was decided by club vote to change future matches to a specified weekend where both rifle and pistol qualifications can be held the same day. All committees are to meet and decide future firing dates on March 22.

The club reaffiliated with the Ohio Rifle and Pistol Association for another year.

A letter was received from the director of The Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms thanking the club for its $50 donation to assist in fighting anti-Firearm legislation.

Winners for the 1974 Fish and Game Contest were awarded trophies following the regular meeting. First place awards went to: William Flowers, ringneck pheasant; Bill Shaffer, largemouth bass, fox with gun, woodchuck with gun; Bill Clark, squirrel; Tom Cassill, grouse with gun, whitetail deer with bow, fox with bow; Jim Redman, walleye and smallmouth bass.

The Pickaway County Archery Division held a hunting course archery match March 9 with 29 shooters competing for trophies and awards. The match was open to club members and the general public.

Dave Massie was first, Ed Spriggs second and Verland Riley third in the Class A non sighted bows. B Class winners in the non sighted bows were: Jack Clark, first; Ralph Large, second; Mick Riley, third.

In sighted Class A winners were: Tom Cassill, first; George Hilf, second; Darrell Collins, third. Class B sighted winners were: Pete Noble, first; Debbie Goodman, second; George Hoffman, third.

The Archery Division's next match will be held 2 p.m. April 6 at the club recreation area.

Pacing Duel Shaping Up For Scioto Jug Preview

A rematch of the "greatest pacing duel in harness racing history, looms a possibility when World Champion Alert Bret and Nero get together again in the $25,000 Little Brown Jug Preview, one of the highlights of the 1975 season at Scioto Downs that begins on May 16.

Alert Bret, the son of Bret Hanover who shattered the World Record for juvenile pacers with his heart-pounding victory by a nose over Nero last fall at Lexington, Kentucky, in a dazzling time of 1:55 4-5, joined Nero, and sixty eight of the fastest sophomore pacers in the nation on the nomination list to the 1975 Little Brown Jug Preview, scheduled for Scioto Downs as the final test just ten days prior to the Jug itself at Delaware, Ohio.

Alert Bret, owned by the Castleton Farm of Lexington, Kentucky, trained and driven by Glen Garmsen, emerged as the 1974 Two-Year-Old Pacer of The Year after his epic victory over Nero.

Nero, co-owned by Rene Dervaes, Jack Massau, and trainer Jim Crane, set the national season's record for 2-year-old pacing colts when he zipped under the wire in 1:59 1-5 at Scioto before his near-fatal experience at Indianapolis where he was drugged just hours before the Fox Stake, coming tragically close to death. But the proud bold son of Meadow Skipper, under the expert hands of Joe O'Brien, rebounded like a true champion and took a juvenile mark of 1:56 2-5, before losing for the first time to Alert Bret in the world record time of 1:55 4-5.

The sport's leading money winning driver Billy Haughton nominated seven to the Preview including the speedy Trooper Chip at 1:59 2-5.

Dick Farrington named three including his two Bret Hanover colts, Dance Contestor at 1:59, and All Time Bret with a mark of 2:00.

Terry Holton put Nova Hill in. The son of Good Show, owned by Jim Wiggins of Columbus, won the Ohio Standardbred Futurity at Delaware last fall in 2:02 2-5, then climaxed his year with a time trial in 2:01 2-5.

George Sholty has four sophomores in the Preview including Farthbest Hanover, a 2:01 2-5 winner last year, and Truxon Hanover, a winner in 2:00 3-5 this year at Pompano Park in Florida.

The Osborne Farms of Mentor, Ohio, already own a share of the Scioto track pacing record of 1:57 4-5 with Osborne Creed, and Title Holder, and this year they have a torrid prospect

Off-Track Betting Threat To Racing?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Off-track betting is a threat to the sport of American harness racing, said Theodore J. Zornow, president of the U.S. Trotting Association.

Addressing the association's board of directors at their 36th annual meeting Sunday, Zornow said an aggressive publicity campaign will be carried out to combat the spread of off-track betting. Off-track betting now is legal only in New York.

Pacing Duel Shaping Up For Scioto Jug Preview

A rematch of the "greatest pacing duel in harness racing history, looms a possibility when World Champion Alert Bret and Nero get together again in the $25,000 Little Brown Jug Preview, one of the highlights of the 1975 season at Scioto Downs that begins on May 16.

Alert Bret, the son of Bret Hanover who shattered the World Record for juvenile pacers with his heart-pounding victory by a nose over Nero last fall at Lexington, Kentucky, in a dazzling time of 1:55 4-5, joined Nero, and sixty eight of the fastest sophomore pacers in the nation on the nomination list to the 1975 Little Brown Jug Preview, scheduled for Scioto Downs as the final test just ten days prior to the Jug itself at Delaware, Ohio.

Alert Bret, owned by the Castleton Farm of Lexington, Kentucky, trained and driven by Glen Garnsey, emerged as the 1974 Two-Year-Old Pacer of The Year after his epic victory over Nero.

Nero, co-owned by Rene Dervaes, Jack Massau, and trainer Jim Crane, set the national season's record for 2-year-old pacing colts when he zipped under the wire in 1:59 1-5 at Scioto before his near-fatal experience at Indianapolis where he was drugged just hours before the Fox Stake, coming tragically close to death. But the proud bold son of Meadow Skipper, under the expert hands of Joe O'Brien, rebounded like a true champion and took a juvenile mark of 1:56 2-5, before losing for the first time to Alert Bret in the world record time of 1:55 4-5.

The sport's leading money winning driver Billy Haughton nominated seven to the Preview including the speedy Trooper Chip at 1:59 2-5.

Dick Farrington named three including his two Bret Hanover colts, Dance Contester at 1:59, and All Time Bret with a mark of 2:00.

Terry Holton put Nova Hill in. The son of Good Show, owned by Jim Wiggins of Columbus, won the Ohio Standardbred Futurity at Delaware last fall in 2:02 2-5, then climaxed his year with a time trial in 2:01 2-5.

George Sholty has four sophomores in the Preview including Farthbest Hanover, a 2:01 2-5 winner last year, and Truxon Hanover, a winner in 2:00 3-5 this year at Pompano Park in Florida.

The Osborne Farms of Mentor, Ohio, already own a share of the Scioto track pacing record of 1:57 4-5 with Osborne Creed, and Title Holder, and this year they have a torrid prospect

Off-Track Betting Threat To Racing?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Off-track betting is a threat to the sport of American harness racing, said Theodore J. Zornow, president of the U.S. Trotting Association.

Addressing the association's board of directors at their 36th annual meeting Sunday, Zornow said an aggressive publicity campaign will be carried out to combat the spread of off-track betting. Off-track betting now is legal only in New York.

Ali, Wepner Fight Tonight

CLEVELAND (AP) — Boxing takes a 35-mile trip over a rolling road to seemingly nowhere tonight for another bizarre Muhammad Ali benefit.

You have to be here to believe it. "I am like oxygen—oxygen is all over the world," bellows the bombastic Ali. "Any man who challenges me is challenging the world—he has to be out of his head."

The challenger is a big, mustachioed booze salesman named Chuck Wepner, who until a couple of months ago was little known outside the dimly lighted saloons of Bayonne, N.J.

He could be the longest shot in heavyweight title fight history. Odds have been quoted from 10-1 to 100-1. Las Vegas refuses to make book on it.

Wepner, a hulking 6-foot-5 with a reputation for facial skin that will crack like delicate china and countless bar room brawls, appears awed by his sudden thrust into the center of boxing's stage and the guarantee of a $100,000 pay check, but he gives no indication of being frozen with fright.

"Ali was a great fighter once but is going downhill," he says. "The champ's got fast hands but slow legs. I will stop him in the 13th."

Some of his closest associates wonder if he believes it.

The 15-round fight, the first defense by Ali since regaining the crown with a knockout of George Foreman last October in Zaire, Africa, is part of a unique electronic doubleheader representing a $2.3 million gamble by promoters.

The show begins in New York's Madison Square Garden at 9:30 p.m. EDT with a creditable heavyweight matchup between Jerry Quarry and Ken Norton, guaranteed $185,000 and $100,000 respectively, for their 12-round battle.

From there, the closed circuit TV cameras shift westward to the $25 million Cleveland Coliseum, a modern 21,000-seat arena which the builder seemed determined to hide from the populace. It is located in the hinterlands, 35 miles from Cleveland, reachable largely over one-lane, roller-coaster roads.

Spectators purchasing tickets at the Garden and the Coliseum will see one fight live and the other on giant screens. The price range for the main event here is $15 to $250. The Garden has a $40 top.

Ali is guaranteed $1.3 million for what most experts contend will be the easiest night's work of his career.

Rumors that the promoters—Don King and Video Techniques, Inc., who pulled off the Zaire undertaking, and Carl Lombardo, Cleveland builder who posted more than $1 million in front money—were in for a $1 million bath were strenuously denied.

"No way," insisted King, former numbers baron and ex-convict who has emerged as the strong man of boxing. "We started with a lemon and wound up with lemonade."

Palmer, Nolan Pick Up Pitching

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles and Cincinnati Reds didn't make it to the World Series in 1974 but comeback-minded pitchers Jim Palmer and Gary Nolan could make the difference this year.

Palmer, who slipped to his first losing record (7-12) because of an elbow ailment last season, worked seven innings, allowing three runs and six hits as the Orioles defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 Sunday.

Meanwhile, Nolan, who hasn't pitched in the majors since 1973 and made only two appearances that year, became the first Cincinnati pitcher to go seven innings in a 7-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox. He also allowed three runs—one unearned—on a yield of seven hits.

In other exhibition games, a split squad of Orioles edged the Atlanta Braves 4-3, the Cleveland Indians outslugged the Milwaukee Brewers 12-8, the California Angels nipped the Oakland A's 1-0, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 8-4, the New York Yankees blanked the Detroit Tigers 5-0, the San Diego Padres buried the Chicago Cubs 14-0, the Montreal Expos shaded the Texas Rangers 8-7, the Kansas City Royals trounced the Chicago White Sox 9-3, the Houston Astros defeated the Minnesota Twins 7-4 and the San Francisco Giants turned back their Phoenix farm club 12-11.

Palmer, who retired 13 of the last 14 batters he faced, didn't say much about his pitching but was ecstatic over his team's power.

The latest slugger was recently acquired Dave Duncan, who drove in four runs with a pair of homers. Bobby Grich also homered.

Nolan was supported by the booming bats of Tony Perez and Johnny Bench. Perez boomed a two-run double; Bench drilled a two-run homer.

The only person unhappy with Nolan's progress is pitching coach Larry Shepard, who has ordered videotapes to try to correct a flaw in the righthander's delivery. He believes Nolan is throwing too high.

Don Baylor hit a home run—his sixth this spring—and Lee May doubled home Brooks Robinson during a two-run eighthinning rally that gave the Orioles' other squad a 4-3 triumph over the Atlanta Braves.

The Indians overcame a six-run deficit in the last four innings to beat the Brewers. A record crowd of 6,249 was on hand at Tucson, Ariz., to see the first match-up between Milwaukee's Hank Aaron, baseball's all-time leading home run hitter, and Frank Robinson, fourth on the home-run list who made his first playing appearance as manager of the Indians.

Aaron smashed a 405-foot double to give the Brewers a 1-0 lead in the first, walked and grounded out. Robinson flied out and walked.

Meanwhile, rumors about a trade involving Cleveland pitcher Gaylord Perry flared again when officials of the Indians and the Boston Red Sox huddled twice. The Cleveland Plain Dealer reported the Red Sox were desperate to acquire Perry.

California's Frank Tanana, Ed Figueroa and Chuck Hockenbery limited Oakland to six hits. Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell slammed two homers and drove in four runs against Philadelphia. The Yankees' Doc Medich allowed four hits in seven scoreless innings against Detroit.

Minnesota Leading In WHA Playoff Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coming around the far turn in the World Hockey Association playoff race, Minnesota is leading by a nose with San Diego and Winnipeg in hot pursuit as the season winds down to what could be a photo finish.

The Fighting Saints, Mariners and Jets are after the few remaining spots for the postseason competition. The top two finishers in each division, plus the two teams with the next-highest point totals in the standings will be eligible to play.

Larry Ziegler Wins Jacksonville Open

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Larry Ziegler peered at the check in his hand.

"It looks okay," he said, then wiped the smile from his face and, in mock-seriousness, observed:

"But I ain't got it to the bank yet." The last time he had won a golf tournament, in the 1969 Michigan Classic, he didn't get to the bank. He didn't even get a check. When the tournament was over and Ziegler was a winner, the sponsors discovered they didn't have enough money to pay off.

He got it eventually. The Tournament Players Division of the PGA paid him from their funds in two delayed installments. It won him the nickname "Half-Pay Ziegler."

The Denver Nuggets may have been sleep-walking but they looked awfully good doing it.

The Nuggets beat Indiana Saturday night in Denver, caught an all-night flight to New York, arriving at 8 a.m., and, about 6½ hours later, tapped it off against the New York Nets.

Some two hours after that they sat around digesting the 114-111 American Basketball Association victory that preserved their five-game win streak.

"These guys don't even know they're tired," said Nuggets' Coach Larry Brown. "We don't even think about that. They played today as if this was the seventh game of the title series."

Elsewhere in the ABA, Kentucky coasted by St. Louis 121-110, Memphis edged Virginia 104-101 in overtime, Indiana downed Utah 117-112 and San Antonio clubbed San Diego 122-102.

Sun Keeps School Both Hot And Cool

TIMONIUM, Md. (AP) — This town boasts the first school in the nation that uses solar energy both for heating and cooling.

The Timonium Elementary School, through sponsorship of the National Science Foundation, installed equipment for heat by solar energy in one wing of the school about a year ago. When the experimental system provided surplus energy, a 50-ton, air-conditioning unit powered by water heated by the sun was added. The unit, manufactured by Borg Warner's York Division, is one of the few capable of operating with water at a temperature of only 180 degrees.

Solar collectors atop the building absorb the sun's rays and heat the water which then is circulated through convectors for space heating. For air conditioning, the hot water is directed to the cooling unit to serve as its power supply. By this method the school estimates it saved 1,200 gallons of fuel oil last March, when the system was installed, through May.

Steve Dykes led Navy's football team in scoring last season with 29 points on six field goals and 11 extra points.

All good things must come to an end ... like the Montreal Canadiens' record 23-game unbeaten road streak. But some bad things go on and on ... like the Washington Capitals' record National Hockey League 16-game losing streak.

Montreal's amazing string ended at 14 wins and nine ties on Ross Lonsberry's 20th goal of the season in the second period. That gave the Philadelphia Flyers a 2-1 victory.

Meanwhile, the expansion Capitals bowed to the Atlanta Flames 5-0 and established another record for futility. The old mark of 15 losses in a row was set in the 1930-31 season by the now defunct Philadelphia Quakers. The hapless Caps suffered their 63rd defeat, extending another mark they set Saturday night.

In other games, the Buffalo Sabres routed the California Seals 9-4 and clinched first place in Division 4, the Vancouver Canucks and St. Louis Blues skated to a 3-3 tie, the Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings deadlocked 4-4, the New York Rangers downed the Boston Bruins 7-5 and the New York Islanders and Minnesota North Stars tied 3-3.

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Stars present a quiet picture. Inject a bit of pep into activities where needed. Incentive can be tailored to meet top requirements.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Be guided by logic in stress periods. Give anxiety no quarter. Be prepared to cope with some minor obstacles which may appear.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Crush any desire to postpone important moves. Strike while the time is propitious and the opposition is off balance.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Some changes or adjustments may be necessary. If so, handle in your usual philosophical manner. Where you should stand pat, however, be firm — but with tact.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Mixed influences. You may have a desire to do something "different" but, before you do, be certain it will be to your advantage.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Certain changes of plan may be suggested. Discuss fully and agree only if they seem truly feasible. Don't cause needless controversy, however.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): A sudden flash of intuition in a romantic matter will be right on target. Follow through and recent barriers to happiness will fall.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Never mind the odds against you! Keep working toward your objectives. There is always a way for the imaginative, optimistic worker. And you are that!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Do not pay too much attention if associates seem difficult. Some persons may be "edgy" now, so don't take unseemly action personally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You could launch a new venture now if you have given it careful thought. A good day for promoting, advertising your wares; in general, to press on to better things.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Fine influences stimulate you ingenuity, creativity and personality. Be careful, however, not to go to extremes in anything you undertake.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): More gains indicated than you anticipate. But there will be SOME obstacles so pick your way alertly and cautiously — but without anxiety.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a tremendous enthusiasm for life, boundless energy and an outstanding gift of leadership. You are both artistic and practical; tolerant and broad-minded; exceptionally versatile in your talents. You have a great love of beauty and, even if you do not follow one of the arts as a career, will almost inevitably choose one as an avocation. Music could be one of the finest outlets for your talents, but other fields in which you could attain eminent success include politics, the theater and science. Curb a tendency to speak without thinking at times; also an inclination to strike out at those whom you feel have slighted you in any way. Birthdate of: Arturo Toscanini, world-renowned musician-conductor; Simone Signoret, film star.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in the mid-1950s, Mike Wallace ran a feisty local TV interview show in which he seemed more prosecutor than reporter and each week's guest more victim than willing participant.

The Wallace approach has mellowed since then. But his CBS interview Sunday with former top White House aide H.R. Haldeman unexpectedly showed flashes of the make-'em-sweat Wallace style of old.

The result was a fascinating kind of cat-and-mouse game with Haldeman, the strong-willed Californian who once was Richard M. Nixon's main man and now is appealing a conviction on Watergate cover-up charges.

Many newsmen tend to be deadpan when interviewing folks. Not Wallace in Sunday's show. At times he was visibly incredulous, and his voice occasionally became very soft, much in the manner of a district attorney hoping for the blurted answer that convicts the defendant.

But Haldeman, a handsome man who spoke in pleasant, well-modulated tones, didn't blurt and seemed to lose his composure only once.

That was when Wallace quoted former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman as telling him, "that you (Haldeman) undertook, the Nixon White House" undertook to pay expenses of the Watergate burglars 'out of compassion.'"

Haldeman, slightly angered, shook his head and replied: "He did not tell you that the Nixon White House undertook to do it. He told you that the Committee to Re-elect the President undertook to do it."

Otherwise, there seemed no strong reactions by Haldeman to the Wallace probing. It was fascinating to hear Haldeman discuss Nixon and Watergate, but he wasn't startled into making startling admissions.

Still, it was an absorbing hour, culled out of more than 6½ hours of filmed interviews conducted by Wallace on March 4 and 5 at Haldeman's home in the fashionable Hancock Park section of Los Angeles.

CBS next Sunday will air a second Haldeman interview with other material from that two-day question period.

It says the show includes Haldeman's home movies of the Nixon years, and his replies to questions ranging from what Nixon thought of the late J. Edgar Hoover to whom Haldeman thought was "Deep Throat," the unknown White House insider who so greatly helped the Washington Post investigation of the Watergate case.

Waugh was initiated for the Portsmouth Club at Circleville.

Mideast Talks . . .

zhak Rabin told newsmen after Kissinger left that Egypt's rejection of Jerusalem's compromise efforts "led to the suspension of the talks."

Just the opposite, said Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy in Cairo. He added that "The state of belligerency will only be ended after Israel's final withdrawal from all Arab territories and the creation of a Palestinian state."

The drop in Kissinger's influence on Egypt was apparent in a statement made in Aswan, Egypt, by a spokesman for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who explained why the secretary had not been invited to return before going on to Washington. "If the Israelis did not give him anything, then it is much better for him to return to Washington to inform the President and the Congress about the Israeli behavior," the spokesman said.

A marked contrast to the Egyptian attitude was seen in Israel, where Rabin went to the airport to see Kissinger off. The prime minister thanked Kissinger for his past accomplishments, adding he was sorry his last effort had failed.

Kissinger answered emotionally, his voice cracking and eyes welling with tears. "This is a sad day for America ... a sad day also for Israel."

The secretary of state said no people need peace more "than the people of Israel, who have come here after 2,000 years of dispersion and a generation of struggle."

While Kissinger did not blame either Jerusalem or Cairo for the collapse, he was described as feeling he may have made a mistake by making his last shuttle trip without iron-clad commitments from both sides.

Without commitments, Israel and Egypt were unable to remove the barriers in which they had "nailed themselves" politically.

Rabin, for example, found his popular support slipping and could not risk being turned from office by easing his demands for a nonbelligerency pledge from Egypt.

Sadat, on the other hand, found his already precarious influence among other Arab leaders could not be maintained if he made such a promise without Israeli withdrawals from land it conquered in 1967 and 1973.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Ford sent private messages to Cairo and Jerusalem last Friday, expressing disappointment over the outcome of Kissinger's trip.

But sources said there were no harsh words in the President's messages and no sense of rebuke. Still, Ford is described as telling Rabin that American support for the Jewish state should not be considered forevermore as unconditional.

Firings Delayed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court today ordered the City of Cleveland to delay firing 1,000 city employees pending further legal action. Chief Justice C. William O'Neill signed a stay of execution, which stops the city from carrying out a lower court order to dismiss the employees by tonight.

The stay order does not mean the Supreme Court has issued a final ruling. The stay is a temporary measure to hold the situation stable while the Supreme Court decides whether to hear a full appeal.

Justice O'Neill ordered legal briefs in favor of the court hearing the appeal filed by March 31, and briefs opposed to the appeal filed by April 7.

After that, the court will decide whether to take jurisdiction in the case.

Auto Lands On Top, 2 Injured

Nineteen-year-old Tina M. Williamson, Columbus, was treated and released at Berger Hospital for minor injuries sustained in a single-car accident, 4:20 p.m. Sunday.

According to the report taken by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy James Leaker, Russell A. Carson, 19, Williamsport, was traveling south on the Circleville-London-Northern Road, when he failed to negotiate a curve, due to excessive speed.

Carson lost control of the vehicle, traveled off the right berm, then veered off the left side of the highway. The auto went into a ditch causing the auto to flip over on its top and back onto the roadway.

Carson was also treated for minor injuries.

No citation was issued.

Police Check Theft Reports, Vandalism

Circleville Police are investigating three theft reports and two reports of vandalism in the city last weekend.

Carroll Dale, 202 E. Franklin St., told investigating officers that her apartment was ransacked with over $200 in merchandise taken Saturday.

The thieves broke a small panel from the front door and reached into the house to work the lock in gaining entry to the apartment. After taking an Ithaca 49-er .22 caliber rifle, a stereo, and a tape deck, they apparently emptied a can of beer and bottle of vodka before dousing the room with talcum powder.

Julian Parker, 21, 214 Logan St., told officers that thieves took a 10-week-old puppy from his back yard Saturday about 6 p.m.

The brown, mixed-breed dog was chained to a stake in the yard.

David Weaver, 139 W. High St., told police that thieves took the battery from a car owned by his father, William Weaver, of the same address, Friday or Saturday.

Vandals slashed the left front tire of a car owned by Becky Herkless, 1075 Mulberry Rd., and tossed eggs on a car owned by Walter Williams, 228 Town St.

Commissioners Discuss County House Numbering

Pickaway County Commissioners Dick T. Tootle, L. Robert Liston and Donald Strous today discussed county wide house numbering.

Jim Page, of Fleming, Page, Stolte Inc., consultants, was present for the discussion. Commissioners have contracted with his firm to supervise the house numbering.

Also today commissioners met with representatives of the Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District, Don Archer, David Bolender and Hewitt Cromley to discuss land appraisal based on agricultural use. The main purpose of the discussion was to reach a mutual understanding with all the government agencies involved on land values.

A lack of adequate surface water drainage was discussed with Charles Gardner who lives on Old Route 62 near the county line and with Mrs. Whaley who lives in Oakwood Park. Commissioners decided to view problem areas in the county Wednesday morning with County Engineer Henry McCrady.

Other items on the agenda this morning included a discussion with Chet Hill concerning painting of county owned buildings, with a representative of George Van Camp Co. on improving and marking the county parking lot and an interview with an application for a janitorial position.

Hoosier Arrested In Stabbing Death

KENTLAND, Ind. (AP)—Walter D. Moore, 37, Kentland, was held in Newton County Jail here in connection with the stabbing death Saturday night of Leland H. Wicker Jr., 25, Goodland, authorities said.

Moore was taken into custody after allegedly stabbing Wicker during an argument at a Kentland restaurant on U.S. 24.

Wicker was dead on arrival at Home Hospital in Lafayette.

Area Agencies On Aging Receive Federal Funds

COLUMBUS — The Ohio Commission on Aging has awarded $1,259,600 in federal funds to seven Area Agencies on Aging to provide social services to the elderly.

David C. Crowley, executive director of the Commission, said the approval of the area plans came at the March 19 Commission meeting held in Columbus. These plans had been prepared by the Area Agencies and had been the subject of local public hearings and reviews.

Money awarded came to the Commission under Title III of the federal Older Americans Act. It is to be used for direct services to older people in such areas as information and referral, transportation, home health services, legal assistance, education, recreation, health assessment, and protective services.

New funds were awarded for the year beginning April 1. Some of the Agencies will have some additional carryover funds not used in the previous year in addition to those allocated March 19.

Area Agencies on Aging awarded funds, with the names of the counties covered, were:

Miami Valley Council on Aging, 184 Salem Avenue, Dayton (Champaign, Clark, Darke, Greene, Logan, Miami, Montgomery, Preble and Shelby Counties), $212,500;

Area Agency on Aging, Community Planning Council of Northwestern Ohio, 1 Stranahan Square, Toledo

UPC . . . THE FUTURE TODAY

You may have noticed a bar symbol similar to the one above on the label of more and more grocery products recently and have wondered why it's there.

This is called a UPC symbol . . . which stands for Universal Product Code. It is a new nationwide identification system for grocery manufacturers and products, readable by the human eye and — in the computer age — by an optical scanner. The first five digits identify the company that makes the product ("The Kroger Co." becomes "11110") and the second five digits identify the item (for example, "80396" above says "40 oz. size, Kroger Brand Pork and Beans").

The use of a unique identifying number from manufacturer to store shelf will benefit shoppers by assisting warehouse and store personnel to verify shipments and to handle products faster and more accurately . . . to help avoid out-of-stock conditions. It also will help with billing and with inventory control.

The UPC also will be used with electronic checkstand systems. A scanner "reads" the item identification on the symbol, a computer provides the correct price . . . and it is rung up automatically — and the price and name of the item printed on the tape — all as quickly as a cashier can pass the item over the scanner slot.

The UPC is a preparation for the future. By providing accurate, complete identification of grocery products, it will help the food industry serve supermarket shoppers better.

We hear you and we're trying to help!
